SAYS CANDIDATES IN ALL RIDINGS ACROSS CANADA

Economic Life to be Freed From "Special Privileged Class," Opportunity for Youth, Are Main Planks

BATTLE WAGED AGAINST GREED

By The Canadian Press and Thos. Wayling

OTTAWA, Ont., July 8.—In his little office on Parliament Hill, with a statue of Mercury on his desk and a plaque of Mr. Beatty standing on his head beside it, Hon. H. H. Stevens Sunday struck a sudden, swift blow for political power.

Parliament was two days prorogued. The prime minister was packing to go to St. Andrew's by the Sea. Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King was somewhere in the Gatineau Hills. J. S. Woodsworth was resting at Muskoka Beach. Post sessional holidays had called them.

But Mr. Stevens didn't want a holiday.

His decision was made during the week-end after a conference with a provisional executive of the new organization, composed of Warren Cook, Toronto; Thomas D. Lisson, Hamilton, and Thomas V. Bell, Montreal, "three prominent and moderate-sized business men." The delegation had come to Ottawa following a meeting at Hamilton Friday of representatives from the different provinces representing various classes of people in Canada, Mr. Stevens said.

In Response To Petition

"On Saturday," Mr. Stevens stated in an announcement issued, "a delegation representing many thousands of citizens resident in all parts of Canada, waited upon me and presented a petition asking that I accept leadership of a party having for its object a reconstruction and reform program similar to that which I have been advocating during the past 18 months.

"This delegation, on behalf of those whom they represent, claimed the right to present this program to the people of Canada so that their views might be expressed thereon. Furthermore, they declare, and I agree with them, that it is contrary to the spirit of true Canadian democracy that our country's economic life should pass under the control of a privileged class, which, unfortunately, is exactly what has occurred. It is contended also that it is the duty of the Dominion government to protect our people from unfair exploitation, and to ensure to them equitable treatment and to the youth of Canada, a free opportunity for a normal Canadian livelihood."

All Upon Reform Bent

Mr. Bennett had promised by radio broadcast—reform. The Liberal party planned a radio series by Mr. King on—reform. Mr. Woodsworth left behind him for mid-month release, C.C.F. platform on—reform.

The three business men, and Mr. Stevens didn't believe any of it. The country wanted reform and so Mr. Stevens was invited to lead new party, a party for—reform.

In a steel filing cabinet in Mr. Stevens' little office are 20,000 letters, sent him since he defied the prime minister and all his works, (or lack of works), and left the cabinet.

They were letters from little people and big, workers and wage earners, farmers and fishermen, white collar men and no collar men. They applauded his action, and told their own stories of want and privation under the Bennett regime of last few years. And they asked that something be done about it.

Waited and Watched—In Vain

Mr. Bennett had promised over the radio to reform these evils. He promised it in parliament. Stevens put his tongue in his cheek and waited. He waited in vain, for in his own words today—"the legislation was inadequate. There was a sharp cleavage in the cabinet about it and an absence of desire to effectively enforce it."

Two weeks ago he got up in parliament and told the government that, so that when the three business men appeared Saturday they found him in a receptive mood. He harkened to their plea, agreed with their arguments and told them he was willing.

Mr. Stevens was questioned as to what groups might support his new party.

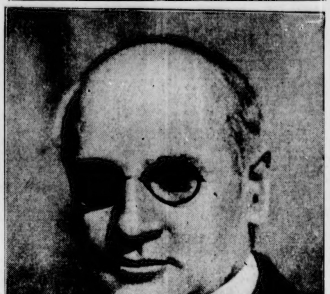

Uniting Of Many Groups

"In the last few years there has sprung up in Canada a large number of groups, evidencing a deep interest in the fundamental causes of conditions of economic disturbance," he replied. "A great many of these groups are willing to join us and submerge their special views."

Asked if the new party hoped to obtain a balance of power in the next parliament or secure the largest following, he answered: "I hope, and from correspondence I have re-

NEW GAS WELL COMES STRONG

LLOYDMINSTER, July 8.—The Lloydminster gas field was proved beyond any doubt today when the number one well of the Colony Oil and Gas Company blew in at 9 a.m. this morning. Experts say that the well will run at between 30 and 35 million cubic feet per day.

So great was the pressure that all the tools were blown out and the roar of the gas can be heard for miles.

Brought in by J. Messender, head driller of the company, the well is proving even bigger than the number one well of the Lloydminster Gas Company, now supplying the town.

The well is being capped this afternoon and work will be commenced on a second well almost immediately.

It is claimed by the drillers that there is every prospect of oil being found in this area.

GAMBLING DEN BARGE LOOTED BY 5 PIRATES

Luxury Ship Monte Carlo Robbed of $32,000 and Jewelry

LONG BEACH, Calif., July 8—Five pirates today boarded the luxurious gambling barge, Monte Carlo, chained its crew, and escaped with what Ed. Turner, owner of the boat, estimated was $32,000 in cash and jewelry.

The attack on the Monte Carlo, which became piracy on the high seas because the big steel barge is anchored about eight miles offshore, occurred while most of the crew were asleep.

Turner said the loot consisted of $22,000 in cash and $10,000 in jewelry, left as security by patrons of the Monte Carlo.

The pirates came alongside in a fishing boat under the cover of a heavy fog. Some remained in the boat while five men boarded the Monte Carlo.

The boarding crew carried chains and were armed with revolvers, rifles and sawed-off shotguns.

SASKATOON, July 8 — Ole Svenson is dead, one other seriously injured and crop and property damage estimated at many thousands of dollars was the toll today of a cyclonic wind and hail storm that ripped across central and north central Saskatchewan over the week-end.

SASKATOON, July 8—Heavy hail losses, numerous railway washouts, and considerable property damage were the toll of a terrific summer gale that swept the city and district Saturday night. Heavy rains which followed the hail were general in most of Saskatchewan.

Farmers of the Viscount, Plunkett and Guernsey district counted their hail losses in millions. A strip four miles wide and 35 miles long was battered by hailstones as large as hen's eggs which beat crop and garden produce to pulp. The damage ranged from 10 to 90 per cent.

Forty different washouts were caused on the railway between Kerrobert and Anglia and 200 men

FRENCH FASCISTS MOBILIZE TO COMBAT REVOLT

LEFTISTS PLAN DEMONSTRATIONS ON BASTILLE DAY

Militant Speech by Cross Of Fire Leader Indicates Trouble Brewing On July 14.

TOURCOING, France, July 8.—Threatening to mobilize his Fascist forces to fight revolution in France, Col. Francois de la Roque, leader of the Croix de Feu (Cross of Fire) in a militant speech here Sunday said:

"Tomorrow or after tomorrow, or in a fortnight I may give you a mobilization order against revolution."

Considerable significance was attached to this remark since on July 14, Bastille Day, leftist elements in France have planned a monster demonstration against war and Fascism.

Col. de la Roque promised that "parliamentarianism will be shelved for a while" when the Croix de Feu takes power and a strong, central, united and authoritative government would replace it.

"We will impose silence too," he added, "on the high institutions who play a double dealing game in carrying on an illusory alliance with the Soviets and rapprochement with Germany. When we take power there will be fewer ministries, and fewer unemployed."

MANY PLACES ENDANGERED BY FLOOD WATERS

Heavy Rains Aggravate Situation in Peace River Areas

Continued heavy rains in the northland over the week-end have maintained flood waters at serious levels, according to dispatches received here Monday.

Torrential rains have been experienced at Falher, Grouard, Slave Lake Point, Mirror Landing, and Athabasca Point, according to the government telegraphs weather report. Falher is on the Dawson Creek-McLennan line of the Northern Alberta Railways which has been out of service due to flood waters for the past week.

AREAS ENDANGERED

Grouard and Slave Lake Point have both been endangered by surging waters of the Slave Lake since conditions first became serious.

Pilot Lewis Leigh, Canadian Airways, who returned to the city Sunday after an airplane flight to stricken areas, reports increasingly serious conditions. A report was received at the Edmonton terminal of the airline Monday morning stating that two inches of rain have fallen in the flooded areas since Saturday night. Pilot Leigh is making a third trip to the north Monday.

LINE BLOCKED

Northern Alberta Railways reported no new information on northland conditions Monday morning. Their Dawson Creek-McLennan branch will not be passable for another week at least, it was stated. The line has not been serviced for one week, flood conditions making passage impossible. Airplanes are being used to keep the district in touch with civilization.

John Callaghan, general manager of the N. A. R., returned to the city over the week-end after personally supervising repair operations for the past two weeks.

Other travellers arriving in the city from the north Saturday and Sunday reported conditions unbelievably serious. An abatement of waters, apparent in the middle of last week, has now given way to wide-spread rises. Efforts of volunteer and government crews to stem the tides have been unavailing.

Resident of Falher for 23 years, Mrs. J. De Windt, who arrived in Edmonton Sunday, reports that she has never experienced such a winter in the northland during her resting stay in the country. Crops are practically ruined, waters rising about and invade buildings, and bewildered livestock wanders aimlessly through flood-covered fields.

SERIOUS SITUATION

Failure of trains, both freight and passenger, to run on the Dawson Creek-McLennan line has proved serious for store-keepers, states Mrs. de Windt. Many have been without replenishment to their supplies for three weeks.

Mrs. De Windt motored from Falher to the main line of the N.A.R. at McLennan. With the main line tracks surging and falling as rains proceed over them, travel is tortuously slow, she states.

Monday's Alberta Motor Association road survey reports heavy rains in the Lesser Slave areas for the past 12 hours and heavy rains at present. Most roads in the flooded areas are practically impassible.

Prince Is Lunatic Says Doctor

PRINCE GEORGE

Political circles in Jugoslavia were thrown into confusion by conflicting reports that Prince George, next-in-line heir to the throne, was the centre of a plot to seat himself on the throne now occupied by his nephew, 12-year-old King Peter, who was made ruler following assassination of his father, King Alexander. Prince George's physician, however, spiked the rumors by his announcement that the prince was a hopeless lunatic.

WORK SCHEME DEPENDENT ON GOV'T. STAND

Whether Mayor J. A. Clarke's new work-at-wages plan for relief cases goes into effect here depends largely on the attitude of the federal and provincial governments on such a scheme, the mayor stating that the success of the proposal depends on the continuance of the senior governments' 50 per cent contribution to relief costs.

Nevertheless, it was at Mayor Clarke Monday whether under his plan relief cases would be required to work for the full amount of their relief on a wage basis, or whether it would only be necessary for them to work for Edmonton's share of relief costs—50 per cent.

"Unemployed would be paid 45 cents an hour for the time they worked and they would be expected to pay for their allowances. "But if this scheme changes our status under the present relief agreement with the Dominion and province, then I don't think it will go into effect. If the other governments are prepared to continue their contributions, amounting to one-half of the relief expenditures, then the plan should be successful."

The proposed work program has been recommended by city council for adoption by the commissioners. Relief Manager H. F. McKee and City Engineer W. T. Haddow have prepared reports for council showing the number of relief cases who could be used on such a program and the type of work which could be carried out.

TWISTER HITS LAC STE. ANNE

Striking with sudden fierceness, accompanying a deluge of rain, storm which broke over them, travel is tortuously slow, she states.

The rainstorm, one of the heaviest ever witnessed by residents of the district, deluged the place in several inches of water and swelled the small creek near the Guide camp so that it overflowed its banks. The flood did not encroach on the camp. There was a mixture of hail in the rain but not sufficient to cause damage.

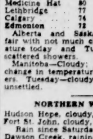

Roads into the camp are impassable today on account of the rain but are expected to be dry enough for cars by Wednesday, which is visitors' day. There are 33 Guides and 10 officers from five South Edmonton companies at the camp, with Miss Helen Burns as commandant.

ROAD REPORT

Rains over the week-end caused a change from smoothness to roughness in most roads in the northern section of the province, according to Monday's A.M.A. report.

A detailed survey follows: Edmonton-Jasper, muddy but drying quickly; Peace River highway, heavy rains, all roads muddy to impassable; St. Paul road, heavy rains, road muddy; Edmonton-North Battleford, rough; Edmonton-Wainwright, rough; Edmonton-Chauvin, rough; Edmonton - Hughenden rough; Edmonton-Provost, rough; Edmonton-Veteran, rough; Edmonton-Mullhurst, rough; Edmonton-Cherhill, muddy.

WASHINGTON, July 8. — Acknowledging little progress has been made in actually transferring "unemployables" from Federal relief to the care of the states, relief officials said today about 4,000,000 such persons still are on the Federal rolls.

This number, about one-fifth of the persons depending in whole or part on Federal relief activities for support, is roughly the same as it was last December.

He said he was driving north, following a street car, when the man stepped off the curb in front of his car. A passenger in his car corroborated his statement that the man stepped off the curb. He had stopped and stood by until the ambulance arrived.

Nesbitt, who was dazed, could not remember what had struck him when questioned at the hospital.

Following a minor collision at Jasper avenue and 97 street, at 11.45 p.m. Saturday, Ted Mottershead, 11161 91 street, was taken to the Royal Alexandra hospital to be treated for a cut on the nose received when his head struck the windshield of the car in which he was a passenger, driven by Paul Guenette, Beverly. Guenette's car, going west on Jasper, collided with a car driven by John Gordon, 9849 106 avenue, which crossed in front of him, turning north from the south side of Jasper avenue.

Lovers' Lane Bandit Pulls Another Job

The "Lovers' Lane Bandit" pulled off another on Saturday night when he held up Frank Bukmeier, Forest Heights, on Portage avenue. Bukmeier told police that he was parked on Portage at 116 street about midnight Saturday when he was held up and made to hand over $2 in cash and a postal order for $4, made out to Miss Lee.

The holdup man had something in his hand, but the victim could not swear that it was a gun. He took no chances, however, and submitted to the robbery. He described the man as five feet six inches tall and wearing a dark suit and cap.

ITALY ECHOES WITH MUSSOLINI'S BATTLE-CRY

Stevens Launches New Party Pledged To Forgotten Man

ceived, I believe it may carry a large body of public opinion will support us."

No Quarrel With Parties

Mr. Stevens made it clear that he had no intention of attacking other parties. He had no quarrel with them except that they did nothing.

His new party needs two things, a platform and a name. The platform Mr. Stevens and his colleagues will work on this week. The name will come later.

There is some belief on parliament hill that he may call his party the Conservative party, in distinction to National Liberal and Conservative party, ditching the cumbrous old label which a French Canadian in parliament once said reminded him of "nothing so much like a mule, no pride of ancestry, nor hope of posterity."

Old Line Support Expected

By calling it the Conservative party, say some of Mr. Stevens' friends, the new leader will gain support of many old line Conservatives, some of whom say the present government never was a Conservative government but a Bennett government, and point to victory of T. L. Church in Toronto as a Conservative, opposed to Bennett government.

Mr. Stevens made it clear his party would accept support of any candidates pledged to its platform. He was chary of discussing the C.C.F. - U.F.A. and similar angles.

Platform Within a Week

He intimated that the new party's platform would be drawn up and issued within a week.

The objective would be a candidate in every riding, but to what extent this could be carried out remained to be seen.

Pressmen queried Mr. Stevens as to the Conservative members of parliament who were known to be with him. Would Mr. Stevens put candidates in the field in opposition to Stevens Conservatives?

Mr. Stevens declined to commit himself; "we will welcome men of experience in public life."

"But can they serve the present Conservative party and the new party?" he was asked.

"It would be difficult, wouldn't it," was his rejoinder.

Stevens intimated the new party headquarters would be in Ottawa; not in parliament buildings but offices would be obtained uptown.

20,000 FILED LETTERS

Asked if he had been considering possibility of a new party for long, Mr. Stevens replied:

"I have in my files, over 20,000 letters received since I left the government. We picked out 1,100 at random to get a cross-section. We have classified them and they give the picture. From boards of trade and business associations, 41; business men of general character, 52; Conservative organizations, 23; Liberal organizations, 1; with some from C.C.F. and farmers' organizations; clergy 47; engineers 10; fasniers and fishermen, 48; farmers 28; mayors of cities, 12; medical profession, 17; members of parliament, 26; newspapermen and magazines, 33; retail merchants' associations, 17; merchants, 90; salesmen nad commercial travellers, 40; service units, 13; university professors, 14; youth movements, 5; general 500.

FEW WERE ADVERSE

Analyzing the same 1100 by districts, there were 402 letters from Ontario, 73 from the Maritimes, 164 from Quebec, 249 from the prairie provinces, 220 from British Columbia, with some extra from the Peace River country, the Yukon, etc.

There were a few, about 20, which were of an adverse character, "but the overwhelming preponderance," said Mr. Stevens, "are almost unanimous in one respect; they urge me to announce myself as leader of reform movement; almost invariably accompanied by this observation, that they wanted to have something to vote for that would express their view.

"To all of these I have answered, until two weeks ago last Wednesday when I spoke in the house (when he spoke on the trade and industry commission bill which he said was wholly inadequate and also condemned the government generally) that I was not interested in formation of a new party or leadership of a party. I was interested in one thing: to secure as far as possible legislative action along lines of reform that I had been advocating and if such legislation was adequate and advanced with the evident intention to vigorously administering it, I would give my unswerving support. But if I considered it to be inadequate then my course would have to be determined in the future. I gave no commitment, nor any encouragement.

INADEQUACY PLAIN

"When the government's legislation was brought down, I recognized: (1) that it was inadequate; (2) the manner of the introduction of part of it—especially by the minister of justice and secretary of state, indicated a sharp cleavage of opinion in the cabinet as to the merit of it, and no absence of desire to effectively enforce it—and it was these things which determined me to question the sincerity of the government and withhold my support from it. It was not until yesterday that I decided to respond to pressure that had been advanced from time to time for a new party.

"In the meantime, these gentlemen (who signed the request) and others had been in touch with with a very large number of representative bodies all over the country. They had a meeting in Hamilton and prepared this invitation and after a very long discussion with them yesterday on the whole subject I decided as indicated in that announcement.

NO CAMPAIGN CHEST

"Do you intend to visit all the provinces?" Mr. Stevens was asked.

"God willing," he replied.

"How about funds?" asked a pressman.

"We have none," said Mr. Stevens. "We will depend on generosity of vast army of friends we know exist in country and we will have to depend on them from whom we can secure an army of voluntary workers such as I believe are better than paid ward heelers." The new party hopes to recruit its following from workers, agriculturists, whitecollar men, merchants and the smaller manufacturers, (as distinguished from the big corporations).

HAD NO ALTERNATIVE

"You did not form your party until you were sure government would not come through," Stevens was asked.

"No. And there was no other alternative," he replied.

"I am not going to attack old parties. They have chosen their path. I differ with them in their method of approach to national affairs Take the Regina situation; neither of major parties in that city attacked the causes of the disturbance which I thought was an appalling thing.

"There was ganged up in Canada a large lumber of groups," commented Mr. Stevens, "each group may have a little fetich and the tendency is to stress it but they are all interested in fundamentals cause, they have made an intelligent study of affairs and will be interested in a new democratic party. Many of these groups are willing to join us and submrge their individual specialties in a general program.

BROAD GENERAL PROGRAM

"You will have a general program; you are not counting only on the police spreads report?" he was asked.

"We will have a broad general program," Stevens replied.

"Will you organize by provinces?"

"Yes," replied Stevens, "I want to ensure possibility of people pronouncing, and to do this effectively I believe this is the best way. Naturally I hope, and from our correspondence I am encouraged to believe that a very large body of public opinion favors a platform such as we are drafting."

"I felt that I could not desert the 20,000 people and offers who wrote me. Thousands of the cases are palpable, they have suffered so much. Very few people in comfortable circumstances realie what tens of thousands of our people are undergoing. I am sometimes amazed and a bit appalled at the patience and forbearance of the people of this country."

EXECUTIVE PETITION

The petition presented to the former minister signed by Warren Cook, Thomas D. Lason and Thomas V. Bell as "provisional executive" asking him to accept leadership of the new party read:

A meeting of your supporters was held Friday, July 5, in Hamilton, at which were gathered representatives from many provinces in Canada, and at which were presented letters and telegrams from others.

We, the provisional executive, were instructed by this gathering, acting on behalf of many thousands of Canadians, to invite every walk of life, to wait upon you, Sir, to beg you to accept leadership of a new party to govern Canada.

We sincerely believe, Sir, that providence has loaned you to Canada for this time and task, and we know of no other man in Canada who now enjoys and can hold, the confidence of the majority of Canadian citizens as you do and shall, Sir.

We, the gentlemen of the provisional executive, have no personal ambitions politically. It is our conscientious desire to serve our country and humanity at large that has motivated us in forming this party.

We, therefore, humbly beseech you, if for no other reason—and there are many—than the future welfare of our sons and daughters.

May God grant you health and that you do this day, accept the leadership of this new party to sustain your vision and power to fearlessly carry through the arduous task of re-establishing Canada's industrial, economic and social life to the benefit of the great majority.

We, the provisional executive, pledge ourselves, without thought to remuneration for personal services, and backed by many thousands of public-spirited Canadians, stand ready at all times to give you our best endeavors.

Mass Meeting To Launch New Party

OTTAWA, July 8—The Stevens party campaign will be launched in two weeks by a mass meeting here, one of the larger Canadian cities, at which Hon. R. H. Stevens will propound its platform and lay down its principles.

A number of Conservatives will be called upon to implement their pledges given to Mr. Stevens some time ago, that they would support him in revolt against the Bennett hierarchy.

A board of strategy will be formed to lead the new party, taking in experienced Conservatives and a group of business and professional men.

"How does it feel to head a new political party?" Mr. Stevens was asked today.

"I have no feeling or personal elation," he replied. "Simply I have a great anxiety to do something effective for thousands of people that I know are suffering."

CITES WIDOW'S CASE

Mr. Stevens cited the case of a widow and three children. The two girls are high school graduates and the boy a college graduate. The young people have been unable to find work and the mother had been compelled to wash floors at $1.25 a day and had now lost that employment.

"And the other day," commented Mr. Stevens, "Parliament sat dumber than an oyster. There was not a word out of the two old parties when I spoke on the plight of youth. This case I have mentioned is merely not due to dereliction on the part of the parents."

Mr. Stevens picked up a telegram from his desk. "Here is a message from an old schoolmate in Peterborough. Here are others from Toronto, Dunnville, Lachine, Montreal, all over the country."

"What are you going to do about the Conservative members who promised to support you?"

"We already have several Conservative members of parliament in our new party," replied Mr. Stevens.

"We welcome support from all

J. D. May Yet Achieve Ambition

John D. relaxes (1930)

John D. Rockefeller

Another milestone in his ambition to live until 1939, when sight for seven D Rockefeller, multi-millionaire oil king. He is expected to observe his ninety-sixth birthday today at his Lakewood, N.J., home, which looks more like a country club than a private dwelling. He has been resting quietly there since his return from Orlando, Fla., a few weeks ago. However, he plans to spend the remainder of the summer at Pocantico Hills, his estate in Wesnchester, N.Y.

STEVENS CLUBS TO BE FORMED COAST-TO-COAST

TORONTO, July 8. — Plans for immediate establisment of a coast-to-coast chain of Stevens clubs were announced last night by Warren K. Cook. Toronto businessman named as one of the chief lieutenants to Hon. H. H. Stevens in the new political party under his leadership.

The personnel of each club could be carefully chosen, he said. One of the primary duties would be the selection of candidates to carry the Stevens banner in the federal election. The Toronto club will be one of the first organized, he said.

Mr. Cook said he would take an active part in the campaign. The party executive will meet in Ottawa Thursday to draft plans for the general campaign.

"We are not concerned with politics at all. We are just a lot of business people—amateur politicians, if you like—who are trying to help those who have no politics, and who want to see the country go ahead," Mr. Cook said.

JOHN D., 96, FEELING FINE SO SAYS SON

LAKEWOOD, N.J., July 8—John D. Rockefeller Sr., was 96 today and enjoying the best health in years. At his home any birthday observance was barred. The nonagenarian's son, John D. Rockefeller Jr., spent the day with him.

"He hasn't felt better in many years," the son said.

His dentist reported the annual examination showed his 19 natural teeth still sound.

The birthday marked the 80th year since the start of the business career that carried Mr. Rockefeller from possession of nothing to possession of estimated billions.

Soviet Denies Manchu Accord

TOKYO, July 8—Dr. Constantin Youzeneff, Soviet ambassador to Japan, Sunday denied that Russia had agreed to proposals of the Soviet-Manchukuo border commission with respect to the demilitarization of the frontier. The Soviet ambassador admitted, however, that he had discussed the terms on several occasions with Koki Hirota, Japanese foreign minister.

source which is reputable. Particularly would be welcome members of parliament. All who receive our endorsation must declare themselves unreservedly behind the movement and the party endorsation of candidates will be made by the organization in the constituency.

Our committee is proceeding with the organization of Stevens clubs. These clubs will form the basis of organization. We have no antagonism to the old political parties. We will fight a positive fight for these principles. I am not antagonistic in my attitude to my political opponents," said Mr. Stevens.

"This is going to rip the Conservative party from stem to stern," said Hon. Thomas Murphy, former Liberal minister of agriculture. "I can't see how he is going to run 245 candidates in the field, especially when they see how little chance they have of election. I think he will hurt the Liberal party. Mr. Stevens will divide the Conservative votes and take some from the C.C.F."

INCREASE LIBERALS

Other Liberal members expressed the opinion that the Stevens move will only increase the Liberal majority.

The Stevens party is looking for a name. Telegrams poured in to Mr. Stevens this morning congratulating him on his stand, and promising support.

Several business men in Ontario cities offered to run as candidates.

Names suggested to Mr. Stevens included the popular party, the national party, the three p's (plain people party) and the conservative party, the dominion party.

Mr. Stevens' own future candidacy is still in doubt. He expects to hear from East Kootenay Conservatives this week and will make his decision until then.

REPORTS OF OFFERS

Reports of offers of a number of riding have reached Ottawa, but Mr. Stevens has received no specific invitations yet.

A telegram from a Toronto business man indicated the trend of most of the wires: "Delighted with news of your new party, and the courage of your convictions commends admiration. Will welcome the opportunity to assist you in your campaign in any way possible."

A prominent Ontario Conservative association secretary recommended a good organizer for Ontario. There were several offers of organizing work. Up to noon today the Liberal and Conservative leaders remained silent on Mr. Stevens' move.

UNION CHIEF EXPECTS GUNS AWAIT HIM

West Coast Militant Docker Leader Carries Fight To New York

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8.—Harry Bridges, who climbed from a ship's hold to stevedore leadership that culminated in San Francisco's general strike last summer, was flying to New York Sunday to battle eastern "Conservatives" and possibly seek the presidency of the International Longshoremen's Association.

OUT TO GET ME

"Several of my boys have told me they're out to 'get' me in New York," said Bridges before he boarded an eastbound air liner.

"And that doesn't mean pop guns," he continued. "It means machine guns. They've said my life won't be worth a dime there. I doubt it, but I expect to keep my eyes open."

PROTECTS UNION

Bridges, a delegate from the San Francisco Bay region longshoremen, whom he heads, was on guard against two reputed moves aimed at his union—charter revocation and abolition of the local autonomy clause.

He also was prepared to call for the Militant Union of Pacific and Atlantic Coast Shipworkers along the pattern set by the Maritime Federation of the Pacific which he recently organized, with a membership of 35,000 drawn from 15th Seafaring and Longshore locals.

Age Of Speed

LONDON, July 8 — Faster trains and more of them, more streamlined cars and new expresses to the seaside are promised this year by the British railway companies, feature the summer train services beginning July 8.

OTTAWA NOT PREPARED FOR STEVENS MOVE

Ex-Minister Has Had Active Political Career Since 1911

OTTAWA, July 8—Political Ottawa was caught unawares Sunday when Hon. H. H. Stevens announced his new party, almost as unaware as that quiet week-end last October when he resigned from the Bennett government after differences of opinion with the Premier and other ministers.

A year ago Mr. Stevens was a full-fledged member of the administration, high in the councils of the Conservative party. Today he heads his own party, attempting to turn the Conservatives out of office.

His troubles with the Conservatives date back to February, 1934, when he became chairman of the price spreads committee of the House. On July 27, 1934, he issued a pamphlet which was the immediate reason for his resignation. It reviewed evidence taken before the committee and criticized several Canadian business firms.

BENNETT WAS IRKED

When the pamphlet came to the attention of the prime minister, he ordered it withdrawn from circulation on the grounds it libelled business institutions. Mr. Stevens contended the pamphlet had been prepared from a speech he delivered before the Study club of the Conservative members and never was intended to be published.

Mr. Stevens was then on his way to Vancouver and a few days later Mr. Bennett sailed for England and it was not until October the two met again and the resignation was made. Mr. Stevens was asked by the prime minister to retract "Mr. statement" and express regret for injuries done to business firms. He refused and resigned Oct. 26.

CABINET LEAK

A new chapter in the Stevens-Bennett clash was written in the house last session when the former minister said he resigned because cabinet secrets were disclosed. He claimed the press was informed of the prime minister's retraction ultimatum which he read in the newspapers the following morning. He said it placed him in an impossible position and made his resignation imperative.

CUSTOMS PROBE

During the price spreads investigation, Mr. Stevens achieved his greatest prominence in the 1926 customs probe. Just as midnight approached on a winter night in the 1926 sess on, Mr. Stevens launched into an attack on the tions department, charging maladministration by the King government. Liberal Logging and Agricultural committee was established which ordered a report finding irregularities.

Conservatives brought in a vote of censure against Hon. George Boivin, then minister and the government as a whole.

A hectic debate followed, but the government won a majority. It ended. This led to "the shadow government" of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and the constitutional issue that returned the Liberals to power in the 1926 election.

SERVED SINCE 1911

Mr. Stevens entered parliament in the 1911 reciprocity campaign. He entered the first Meighen government in 1921 and was minister in the short-lived 1926 administration.

In the 1930 election, Mr. Stevens was defeated in his old riding of Vancouver Centre by Hon. Ian Mackenzie Liberal, but the conservative member for East Kootenay resigned his seat in his favor. He was born in Bovek, England, in 1878, and at one time travelled extensively in the Orient.

Ex-Calgary Pastor Inducted In East

TORONTO, July 8—Rev. J. E. Todd, formerly of Central Methodist church, Calgary, was inducted last night as minister of St. Clair Ave. United church, succeeding Rev. A. E. Langford, superannuated.

Rev. J. J. Ferguson, assisted by Rev. G. A. Balfour, assistant pastor at the church, and Rev. Harold Lynd, conducted the ceremony. Address to the congregation was delivered by Rev. R. J. Irwin. Rev. Dr. H. W. Addison delivered the charge to the new minister.

PREPARATION FOR COMING CONFLICT THRILLS NATION

No Mediation, No Territorial Concessions, But Inevitable War is Will Of Fascists.

ROME, July 8—A ringing battle-cry from Benito Mussolini's lips, echoed through Italy Sunday as the country turned heart and soul to preparations for the war with Ethiopia many believed inevitable.

Before nearly 15,000 Blackshirt volunteers destined for service in East Africa who gathered at the Salerno Saturday Il Duce, cheered to the echo, declared:

"We have before us not upon a struggle in which we as a government and a people will not turn back. The decision is irretrievable."

MOUNTS GUN CARRIAGE

A cannon-top, significantly, was Il Duce's rostrum for his fighting speech and the throng of eager-faced youths rearing approval of his words included four of his own aviators. In Rome the leader's two aviator sons, Vittorio and Bruno, signed up for African service.

NO MEDIATION

While Fascists rejoiced at Mussolini's escape from harm when lightning struck the wireless antennae of his big three-motor airplane while it was fighting its way down through an electrical storm to the little west coast town, authoritative sources here reiterated Italy neither wanted nor would accept mediation of her conflict with Ethiopia.

Once again they declared the matter one to be settled—and settled once for all—directly between Italy and Ethiopia. Italy wants no half settlement such as territorial concessions, they said.

TROOPSHIPS LEAVE

Three ships left for East Africa over the week-end, bearing more than 3,000 men and officers. Many more other vessels waited at the docks for the regular volunteer battalions, one of which is en route from Tripoli to join the newly-created Blackshirt division "the third of January."

Newspapers gave jubilant headlines to dispatches saying France had decided to adopt a "hands off" action before the League of Nations designed to obstruct Italy's war aims.

MOCK BATTLE

Rome was the scene of a mock battle on Sunday between young Blackshirts, under regular officers in many mobilization cantonments, but finishing drill touches on troops of that nation to brave the mountains, jungles and sand of East Africa.

ONE GOOD GUESS

His memory stirred by the approach of the elections and recent events at Regina, Hon. Hugh Allen recalls and repeats a prediction he made during the session of the legislature—that the Provincial Government will abandon the twenty-cents-a-day rate in provincial camps for single men and will pay a fair hourly rate.

When that most desirable change is to come about he did not say. But he did say "The great difficulty in introducing a scheme such as this is that it will absorb the majority of single men during the season of the year when their services are required by the farmers."

From which it may be inferred there is no intention to start the work and wages program until the harvest is past. As the elections are scheduled to be held before harvest starts, the repeat announcement is rather a prediction of what the next Government will do than a forecast of action by the present one.

While the present Ministers have not been commissioned to proclaim beforehand the intentions of their prospective successors, Mr. Allen has in this case made a very accurate guess. Nothing about the twenty cents a day is no part of the policy of the Liberal party. That modified form of slavery will have to "go" when a Liberal Government takes office.

GET ON WITH IT

Two months ago the city council decided to resume construction of the scenic drive to the Highlands; started in 1933 as a relief work project and suspended in the fall of that year for lack of funds, on the definite understanding that work should be resumed when funds were available.

The $500,000 loan received last fall from the Dominion Government solved the financial problem, and it was from this fund council decided two months ago to take the money to finish grading the road. The strike of relief men stalled such operations for a time, but the strike ended long ago, and it was to be assumed work would start on the drive in due course without further palaver.

For whatever reason, that has not happened. Not a shovelful of earth has been turned on the project this season. Meantime the city has been paying out relief money in the same amount that would have been paid if the road had been under construction. The net result is that this money is gone, two months of fair weather have been lost, and the road is no nearer completion than it was in the fall of 1933.

It is high time to end this farcical performance and get on with the undertaking. Council is to discuss the matter again this evening. The outcome of the discussion should be instructions to the engineering department to proceed to carry out the work—as council last May promised the taxpayers would be done.

CAMPS COST TOO MUCH

Hon. Peter Heenan, Ontario's Minister of lands, forests, and northern development, says that province cannot afford to build highways on the relief camp plan, and will in future let contracts for highway construction. A mile of road, he says, can be built by a contractor for half the cost of getting it built under the relief camp system.

Mr. Heenan, it is pertinent to note, is a railwayman, who earned his living, save during his years of official life, driving a locomotive. He is not in a position of sympathy or of sympathy with the man who works with his hands, or of harboring any desire to see him under-paid or worked unduly hard. When he says contract work is cheaper than relief camp work, it must be taken that he means contract work for which fair wages are paid for a fair day's work.

This declaration from a responsible Minister, who stakes his reputation on the statement, is a direct and emphatic challenge to the assumption that it is cheaper to keep men in relief camps than to pay them wages for working. Canada, on this showing, is throwing away money, as well as throwing away man energy, in maintaining these camps.

The relief camps were established on the claim that it costs less to support men in that way than to pay them wages for work, and have only been maintained on that supposition. Ottawa should also look into this declaration that it is wasting money to waste men's time and energy.

THE RIGHT TO THINK

Attorney General Roebuck of Ontario was censured by Premier Bennett for not taking action against Tim Buck when that gentleman "openly said he was a Communist."

The Attorney General of British Columbia and the Attorney General of Saskatchewan are in line for castigation on the same ground. So is Attorney General Lymburn of Alberta, one of whose colleagues has been appearing on the platform with an avowed believer in Communist doctrines.

If it is the duty of an Attorney General to take action against any and every person who declares himself a Communist, these three stand in the same position as Mr. Roebuck. That Mr. Bennett thinks a Communist should be so treated is in entire accord with the orders upon which the police acted at Regina, when suspected Communists were arrested "as such."

It may be that Mr. Bennett is right in his interpretation of the law as it stands, though he is one lawyer against four. If so, that only shows how badly the law needs amendment. Shocking as it may be to the Premier to say so, a citizen of Canada has precisely the same moral right to be a Communist that another has to be a Conservative.

This is supposed to be a free country, and in a free country men cannot rightfully be punished for what they think, but only for what they do that injures or interferes with others. That the Attorneys General decline to set themselves up as inquisitors is entirely to their credit. If Mr. Bennett wants somebody to play the role of Stalin, Mussolini or Hitler, he is very properly told by Mr. Roebuck to do it himself.

Poems That Live

MY HEART LEAPS UP

My heart leaps up when I behold
A rainbow in the sky:
So was it when my life began;
So is it now I am a man;
So be it when I shall grow old,
Or let me die!
The Child is father of the Man;
And I could wish my days to be Bound each to each by natural piety.
—William Wordsworth.

Recent bank statements show that some $800 million of Canada's bank loans are commercial. More than $1 billion of them have been loaned to the Government in securities. In short, nearly 60 per cent of Canada's banking business is transacted with the Government. And the banks have become little more than investment trusts.—Vancouver Sun.

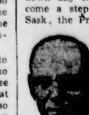

An official of the National Association of Letter Carriers reports that disappointed chain-letter senders are actually accusing postmen of abstracting money-laden envelopes and keeping the money for themselves. The charge is too absurd for discussion, of course. But it is not much more crack-brained than the whole chain-letter idea was in the first place.—Victoria Times.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Lo, a contrast in rulers!

On the same day that Premier Bennett ordered out the civil militia to arrest or shoot down any man wanting work who dared to come a step nearer to Ottawa than Regina, Sask., the Prince of Wales was so touched by the lot of northern miners out of work in England, that he could not keep back his tears.

J. S. Cowper

Just as on the field of battle, it's the poor shilling a day or dollar a day man who get the wounds fighting their kind, while the generals keep to their safe headquarters behind the lines.

Detective Millar of Regina had no personal quarrel with the men wanting work and wages. Had he been without work and wages, he would likely have been with them in their protest. But the job for which he was paid wages required that he mingle among the strikers assisting to arrest their leaders. He fell a victim to mob rage when the police clubbed the men wanting work and wages.

And you mustn't blame the police for the death of their comrade. They too, to avert the hunger for work and wages, had to obey orders. Unless you could creep like an ant into the brain of the man who ordered the orders and know beyond peradventure whether his was a stupid habit of mind, or a calculated move to bring about a clash, without regard to who was maimed and killed, you can't even be censorious about him. All we can say is that whoever originated the idea of raiding and clubbing the work-less men while they were holding peaceable conference, misunderstood the spirit of the men—many of whom went overseas. He should be indicted for inciting riot.

A reader sends in an original poem, "One of the Unemployed Looks at War."

Foul, thrice-accursed thing!
With hating eyes and nostrils breathing death
You view the flower of youth.
On ranks of living men you breathe your fumes of poisoned breath
And, on the morning air, to heaven, waft
The stench of dying flesh.
While twisted bodies, beautiful one time,
Now, wondering, look at God
With sightless, staring eyes.

And yet—
To us, the strong and willing ones, unwanted now—
Scorned and rejected, forgot, despised of men—
Were you to call—
Heroes all! Heads up! Our country
Proud to have us wear its uniform.
Men once more!
Because War called.

Two pugilistic heroes went out of the ring defeated in the dying days of last month. Baer whose contribution to the ring was his ability to clown and refuse to take it seriously, went out with a gallant gesture. He may be back again next year.

Give your pity to Primo Camera. Wounded, he turned to courageous animal, coming up again and again to the butchery, till with blood streaming from his mouth, his eyes glassed and his guard down, he was spared by the intervention of a referee.

He didn't get any pity from his managers and trainers. They saw in his defeat the vanishing of their meal tickets. "You dumb ox," yelped his manager as Primo staggered out of the ring—only he didn't say ox. "You've done everything I told you not to. If you'd only listen to me you'd be more than a pushover."

Then Doc Bagley, his trainer, cut in. "Ya big stiff. Why didna ya stay down for a count of nine when he dropped you that first time," he snarled.

Poor Primo. He never had a happy choice of managers, or a big cut in his winnings. Doc Bagley uttered Primo's requiem as a fighter when he derided him as a "a big stiff."

Now to a happier subject. According to the Toronto Telegram, two Canadian millionaires are about to exchange the muskeg of northern Ontario and the chill morality of Toronto the Good for the sunny isles of Channel Islands, with country residences and town houses in England.

One of the lucky men is William H. Wright, vice-president of Lake Shore Mines and vice-president of Wright-Hargreaves Mine. He is reputed to have an annual income of $2,000,000.

The other is Harry Oakes, who recently resigned the presidency of Lake Shore Mines. He is reputed to have an income of $3,000,000 a year.

The federal treasury, which took a big chunk of each man's winnings by way of income tax, will miss both millionaires.

What is the attraction of the Channel Islands that so many millionaires want to acquire residences there? They are beautiful, of course. But so is Canada beautiful, with a wide variety of beauties.

Channel Islands have a modest income tax and no succession duties whatsoever. Is it to safeguard their estates from the public Treasury that so many millionaires want to acquire residences there?

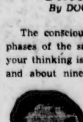

The late Sir William P. Houston, a fine old Tory member of the British House who had acquired a fortune of thirty millions by running a line of steamers that were known along the Liverpool docks as the "Starvation Line," bought an estate in Channel Islands shortly before his death with a view to preventing the British Treasury from claiming death dues on his estate. The British Treasury refused to regard the late Liverpool member as a resident of the Channel Islands. All was set for a long lawsuit when the executrix, Lady Houston, sent the Treasury a cheque for $5,000,000 with a sporting offer to settle for that amount. The Treasury took the cheque and Lady Houston has since spent large sums of money on public benefactions.

Here's hoping you'll be able to take up residence in the Channel Islands some day.

Suggestion And The Unconscious Mind

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

The conscious and the unconscious are two phases of the same mind. About one-tenth of your thinking is done with your conscious mind and about nine-tenths with the unconscious part. The conscious is the reasoning or thinking part of your mind. The unconscious is the seat of emotion, instinct and habit, and is the storehouse of memory. Another duty of the unconscious is to rebuild the body, replacing old cells with new ones. Maybe it will help you to think of it in this way. Compare the conscious mind with the reception room where records are made and compare the unconscious mind to the storeroom where they are placed for keeping and where the records are played over and over again.

Dr. F. McCoy

One of the important facts about the unconscious is that it does not reason. It works according to the law of suggestion and acts upon the suggestions or commands sent to it by the conscious mind, trying to materialize them. That is, the unconscious tries to make good on what the conscious tells it to do. This fact has been known to all the great teachers of mind control. Remember, nine-tenths of your thinking goes on in the unconscious and this part of your mind can be changed by simply changing the kind of suggestion sent to it by the conscious mind.

All of the students of mind control who grasp this fact secure good results. By using good suggestions it is possible to build up the body, since, as I have said, the unconscious directs the building of new cells. Suggestion may therefore play an important part in overcoming disease and replacing it with health. There are many of these suggestions which may be used which have an undoubted power in the cure of disease. Of course, I advise that the patient use certain physical measures such as diet, exercise, baths and so on, but nevertheless, the cure will be more rapid in every instance if at the same time the patient learns to help himself with good suggestions.

It is true beyond any question of a doubt that the mind has a tremendous influence on our continued well-being. Many are coming to realize that they can better control these unconscious forces for good by self-suggestions. The unconscious has a tremendous power in affecting the body and is certainly able to produce important physical changes. The state of health is more closely related to this unconscious influence than is commonly realized. suggestions given to the unconscious, whether good or not good, have an importance which cannot be dismissed.

I do not hesitate to say that your unconscious mind plays a large part in your health, your success and your happiness. This part of your mind will work wonders if you will give it a chance to help you.

To make these suggestions to the unconscious effective, you must hold a mental attitude of expectancy. You must expect to receive that for which you ask. You must be expecting it so strongly that you expect it at any moment. It is an unquestioned fact that if you believe you are already receiving it, then you will have the best chance of actually receiving it. We find this necessary mental attitude mentioned in the Bible, where it says, "Ask and it shall be given unto you—seek and ye shall find —knock and it shall be opened unto you." This is another way of saying that while you are yet asking for what you want, it is being given to you.

Inasmuch as this subject is an important one, I shall continue the discussion in tomorrow's article. Watch for it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—H. S. writes: "I have a wen on the left side of the neck just back of the ear. Will you please tell me the cause, as I seem perfectly healthy. Also, how can I get rid of it?"

ANSWER—It will probably be necessary for you to have the wen removed by a plastic surgeon. The operation is quite harmless and should leave only a small scar.

QUESTION—Enos Y. writes: "Will you please tell me what a pterygium is and can it be cured by diet?"

ANSWER—Pterygium is an external growth on the eyeball which can be removed by an operation. It is usually fan-shaped with the apex toward the pupil and the base toward the canthus of the eye near the nose. The operation is simple and would be more satisfactory than trying to diet for the trouble.

Horoscope

By MARY BLAKE

On July 9 you will have to be tactful regarding what you say if you wish to avoid running the danger of making an enemy. People's feelings are liable to be very sensitive. Business should be decidedly on the up-grade. Married and engaged couples, as well as those engaged in love affairs, may find this an auspicious day for asking favors.

If a woman and July 9 is your birthday, you will make a grave mistake if you permit a feeling of dissatisfaction to dominate you. Eliminate it by letting your thoughts dwell on the many things you have to be grateful for. If domestic life does not bore you, your marriage should be successful.

The child born on July 9 generally, when it reaches school age, requires to be taught the necessity of learning to concentrate.

If a man and July 9 is your natal day, your ambitions are likely to cause you to have too many irons in the fire for your own good.

Side Glances — By George Clark

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date in 1893 a small riot took place on the Champ de Mars at Montreal. The result of a foolish remark by a visitor from the United States.

The Christian Endeavor Society, then in its infancy, had come to Montreal to hold its first convention in Canada. With that courtesy towards visitors which marks the majority of the people of Montreal the city had opened its doors to this distinctly Protestant organization, notwithstanding that seven-tenths of the city's population were Roman Catholics. The Champ de Mars, historic parade ground, had been given up entirely to the visitors; two or three large marquees and an open air stand had been provided by the city and the then mayor had, although himself a Roman Catholic, read an address of welcome to the visitors, mostly from across the border, but with a sprinkling from Ontario.

All went well the first couple of days, but on the second evening some careless American divine, who knew not the local conditions, made some remark —I don't recall what it was, but it was something to the effect that "Montreal was a priest-ridden city" and other like remarks. The English newspapers conferred and decided that it would be well, in the interests of public peace that the speech should not be reported, and it was not—by them. But the French papers were represented there also, and no one could blame them for the next night printing the offending language in big type.

The result was what might have been expected. That night the 8th the Champ de Mars was invaded by a local mob. The marquees were torn down and an attempt made to burn the stand, but police soon arrived and the rioters were put to flight, with no more serious damage than a good scare for the women delegates. The local Endeavorers at once saw the gravity of the situation, the offending speaker not only made a public apology when the marquees were re-erected, but he went to the office of La Presse and tendered his personal apology, publishing a sentence of conditions in Montreal. And there the incident ended. The convention was resumed, and at its close passed a vote of thanks to the people of Montreal for their hospitality.

WHAT SHARE-THE-WEALTH MEANS

Because of his "Share-the-Wealth" proposals, President Roosevelt has become the target for the bitter hatred and sharp resentment of wealthy Americans.

Brooking's Institute, which capably measures standards and social conditions, in a recent study showed that about 71 per cent of the families of the United States received less than $2500 a year.

In fact, 90 per cent of this group was not in a position to enjoy even a liberal diet.

Why?

In 1929, America's 36 THOUSAND richest families received as much income as America's 11 MILLION poorest families.

The rich families did not spend their income in proportionate lavishness. But they invested their surplus income in capital goods.

Wealthy people receiving high incomes justify it by claiming their money is reinvested.

Reinvested in what?

Reinvested in capital goods.

This is investment by the wealthy in unnecessary and duplicated businesses and buildings and plants instead of going into foods and clothing and recreation for the masses that is causing so much suffering across United States and Canada.

What does "capital goods" mean?

It means, in many, many cases, more buildings, more railroads, more newspapers and more businesses to compete for the business and profits of existing firms instead of using the existing firms with their plant and organization to produce more consumer goods —more food, more clothing, more comforts, more services in the way of travel and recreation.

The difference between consumer goods and capital goods is understood by but few people. It is the crux of the condition that cries for change.

If Huey Long or Upton Sinclair or even President Roosevelt better understood the basic needs of their country, they could not successfully make the political appeal to the masses they are making with their share-the-wealth proposals. Three Meals A Day Including Sundays

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

The only time—excepting war time—everybody in Canada has had a chance to make some money and eat regularly was under the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Government of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King.

When Sir Wilfrid went to the country with the U. S. Reciprocity Treaty the Conservatives got out the old flag and implored the voters not to sell the country to the United States; and premised the voters that the Conservatives could do more by a tariff than could ever be done by reciprocity. The voters believed the Conservative promises, and the day that the good-intentioned and well-meaning political child of misfortune, Sir Robert Borden, attained the premiership, prosperity departed from our midst.

Then came the war; and the time of great prosperity for the gentlemen who sold supplies to the Government, and the time of tremendous sacrifice for all the rest of the people.

After Sir Robert Borden made way for Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, and things kept going from bad to worse, the electors finally recalled the Liberals to power.

Under Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King the commerce of the country was re-established; real estate values were restored; there was money for constructive purposes, and a steady national growth.

Then came the 1930 election; and the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett gained the ear of the electorate, promising, by tariff, to blast our way into the markets of the world; to provide employment for all Canadians as the first duty of government; and to place Canada first.

You know the rest. The effect of the balance of trade policies, applied by high tariff explosives, has been to wreck real estate values completely; and the horrors of unemployment darken the whole national sky.

The only sensible thing to do is to recall the Liberals to power —whether we like them or not—because we have learned from tax sales and foreclosures, and crashing of commodity prices, and sad experiences generally, that we were crazy to tie up to wildly greedy tariffs for the benefit of a privileged few; and that the only good balance of trade is one based on the utmost possible volume of trade so as to restore and sustain real estate values. When real estate values collapse and stay collapsed, the balance of trade is destructive.

We are only doing one dollar of commerce today as against each four dollars of commerce done under the last Liberal government. The loss of three-fourths of our commerce explains where the loss of all values in Canada, including the collapse of wage scales and salary standards, comes from. It is the effect of placing special privilege in control.

The only remedy is to recall the Liberals to power. They rebuilt commerce under Sir Wilfrid Laurier. They rebuilt commerce under Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King. It is absolutely certain the Liberals will rebuild Canadian commerce once brought back to power; and three meals a day including Sundays will be a fact instead of a dimly hoped-for ideal.

REGINA RIOT PROBE OPENS ON THURSDAY

Prince Albert Judge Added to Personnel of Commission

REGINA, July 8.—Saskatchewan's inquiry into the July 1 riots in Regina and the relief camp strike situation is not expected to get under way before Thursday.

Terms and limits of the investigation will likely be set out in an order-in-council of the provincial government early this week.

Hon. T. C. Davis, attorney-general, who is guiding the inquiry, left Friday for a brief holiday. Premier Gardiner has gone east to visit his former home at Exeter, Ont.

NAME JUDGE DOAK

Appointment of Judge E. S. Doak, of Prince Albert, as third member of the inquiry, was announced Friday night. Other members are, Mr. Justice W. M. Martin, of the appeal court, and two guards.

Chief Justice J. T. Brown, of the King's Bench Court.

Vagrancy charges against 61 men, arrested following Dominion Day riots, were withdrawn in city police court Saturday. All were out to be relief camp strikers. James Scott, fined on the vagrancy count, was immediately re-arrested on a charge of assaulting police.

SIX STILL HELD

Of the 67 who appeared Saturday, six remain charged with vagrancy and will appear again Tuesday. Other charges may be substituted.

It is estimated there are 51 men still in custody.

Condition of J. Rothecker, hospital orderly, who was shot in the spine during the riot, showed improvement yesterday.

Constables Wakefield and Shaw, R.C.M.P., were reported to be making good recovery from head injuries.

Patrol Clash On Manchu Border

HSINKING, July 8.—One hundred soldiers were rushed early Sunday to the Jehol-Manchukuoan frontier where a detachment of the Chinese army of Gen. Sung-Cheh-Uan, former military head of Chahar province, was reported to have attacked the Manchu border patrol killing Martin, of the appeal court, and two guards.

Nation's Business Keeps Keenly Ahead That Of 1934: Slips Winter Peak

Economic Lift Continues Says John T. Flynn, and Plunge Checked — But Recovery Goal Still Far Away

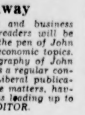

Since changes in the American economic and business scenes so quickly reflect on Canada, Bulletin readers will be interested in this the first of three articles from the pen of John T. Flynn, one of America's foremost writers on economic topics. Mr. Flynn is the author of "God's Gold," a biography of John D. Rockefeller and "Graft in Business," as well as a regular contributor to Harpers, New Republic and other Liberal publications. He is also an authority on stock exchange matters, having played a prominent part in the investigations leading up to a reorganization of the New York Exchange—EDITOR.

By JOHN T. FLYNN.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Edmonton Bulletin).

NEW YORK, July 8.—We have spent half of 1935. What have we gotten for these six months of life? How is business? How far have we travelled in this momentous half year?

Ask a Republican in Washington and he will tell you we have gotten nowhere. Ask a Democrat and he will claim that we have definitely moved toward that coveted goal—recovery. A good plan is to ask neither. Business is a solid, practical, factual thing. It is possible to measure it as it is, though not always as it so easy to forecast what it will be.

JOHN T. FLYNN

First let us look at the road which business has travelled since the beginning of 1933. Whatever the causes, business began to move down swiftly, in panic, as 1933 opened and President Roosevelt prepared to take office. The bottom of that decline—collapse is the better word—was reached the third week of March shortly after the president's inauguration. This was the first of seven distinct movements in the last two and a half years.

The second movement was up. It began around the first of April and mounted sensationally until July 18. It was the result of the threat of inflation which arose out of the Thomas amendment to the agricultural bill, giving the president the power to inflate in three ways. It collapsed in the latter part of July when it was clear the president would resist inflation.

REACTION TO BOOMLET

THE third movement was down—from July 18 to November 1, 1933. This was purely the reaction from the brief inflationary boom.

The fourth movement up began around November 1, 1933, and continued to June, 1934. This was the result of the government's spending program, which began in September with the inauguration of the relief program and the CWA.

The fifth was down from June 1 to the middle of September, 1934. This was largely a summer recession—quite natural even in good or normal times.

The sixth was up. It began in the second week in September and continued until the end of January, 1935. It was merely a repetition of the upward movement which had begun in November, 1934. The chief ingredient in this, as in the fourth movement was the government's spending program.

SEVENTH MOVEMENT IS ABNORMAL

THE seventh movement is the one which has characterized the last six months. It has been down from the end of January to the late week in May. It is not easy to explain this downward movement. There is against the general trend for the season. It should have been up until June 1 at least, followed by a summer recession. Instead it was down to May 25 and then, oddly enough, began to move up. It has been moving up for four consecutive weeks. If it should continue we would have to label it an eighth movement. However, it would not be surprising if it should resume its downward trend for the summer and then started upward again in the fall.

Now let us look at this a little closer. Since the beginning of the New Deal March 4, there have been three upward movements. One was distinctly abnormal. The normal inflationary boomlet which ended in July, 1933. The other two, which are comparable were as follows. One ran from November 1, 1933, to June 1, 1934. The next ran from September 15, 1934, to February 1, 1935. The first went forward for four and a half months. The first was longer. The last was higher. The first corresponded with the normal season for a rise. The second was a little freaky and difficult to account for. In the ordinary course of things, however, there should be another rise beginning not later than September, though it may come—depending upon several factors to be looked at later.

Now let us look at the behavior of business in the first six months compared with the same period of 1934. In 1934 during most of the first half it was ahead of the year, during most of that period it was going down. But despite this, business as a whole, during this first half of 1935, was larger than in the corresponding period of 1934. Had it been able to maintain its upward pace right on through June it would have soared close to something approaching real recovery.

HOW INDEXES ARE OBTAINED

ALL this is measured by what are called index numbers. That is, a larger number of factors — production of steel, coal, electric power, autos, lumber, cement, transportation, trade, bank clearings, etc. — are lumped together and averaged according to rules laid down by statisticians. Then business at a given period, which is considered normal, called 100 — a measuring index number of 100. Thereafter we can express the rise or fall by figures lower or higher than that 100. Many such numbers are compiled by various statisticians. Each chooses his own factors. Hence the result yielded by any given index number will vary according to the factors included by the statistician. Frequently wide differences occur between them. But as to the general trend as outlined above most of the index numbers agree.

If we consider business from 1923 to 1925 as normal and 100, then at the beginning of 1934 it was 66 and at the beginning of 1935 it was 74. At the end of June, 1934—this time last year—it was 75. This year it is 72. In the first half of 1934 business moved in a range between 67 and 77. In the first half of this year it moved in a range between 70 and 80. Now then, the next effort of business itself and of Washington engaged in the job of producing recovery is to get it to move into another range—say between 80 and 90.

PRODUCTION INCREASED

THIS is the general picture. We must now look at it more in detail. What did business do these last six months in the production of goods? This is the measure of our struggle toward abundance. Well, we produced more goods in the first six months than in the same six months of 1934. It was 14 per cent. better in January, 1935, than in January, 1934. In February it was 9 per cent. better. In March it was 47 per cent. better in April it was 11 per cent. better. In May it was 1 per cent. less. Reliable figures for June are not yet available. The total production for the whole six months of 1935 was 19 per cent. better than in the same six months of 1934.

However, this was due largely to increased production of automobiles. If we take them out of the total, production was about the same. In fact the automobile industry has furnished the single instance of marked recovery. Last year in five months the motor makers turned out 1,475,965 cars. This year in the same time they made 1,953,657 cars, or a half a million more. Put differently, this was roughly 33 per cent. better.

Meantime the railroads did not do so well. They hauled a little less freight. And the tendency of rail business was down, while last year it was up. As for their earnings, they did not improve the same. The railroad story can be told in the simple statement that the railroads generally have declined. Perhaps we may say that since many of the roads are in the throes of receivership they are thus that much nearer to returning health. But this might be considered a flat statement.

BUILDING STILL LAGS

THE one important even vital area of industry which stubbornly resists revival is the building industry. The full measure of inflation has been printed about this. As part of the effort to revive construction it has been supposed it be necessary to use no end of ballyhoo. Every little favorable factor has been guaranteed out of all proportion. And I find the impression created that building is taking an active life. They are not. It is behind last year. The following figures tell the story. They give comparative daily average of new construction contracts from January, May 31 1934 and 1935, covering 37 states:

	1934	1935
January	$7,171,615	$5,837,484
February	4,396,182	3,410,813
March	6,603,407	4,732,423
April	8,345,240	4,780,173
May	5,167,846	4,873,792

The favorable element in the building picture, however, is that residential construction has improved. It is very much better than last year. But it is still quite low and is not in any sense near revival. The increase in home construction, however, has been more than offset by the falling off in commercial construction. Take it as a whole, the building industry as a whole, it is sustained almost wholly by government contracts or government loans to municipalities and private individuals and corporations. It shows no vigor of its own. It remains now, as it has been since the beginning of the depression, the one big spot in our industry which must be dealt with before true recovery can be attained.

PURCHASING POWER WANES

WHAT of that troubled soul—the merchant? How department stores and chain stores have been doing all reconciled fully. But the hundreds of thousands of small merchants still do not furnish any statistics as to how much they are selling. We can merely say that department stores—so far as they are an index of retail trade—sold more this year than last; that they did better in the first three months of 1935 than in 1934 and not so well in the last three months. Thus we see that production was a little better, railroad operation about the same, retail trade a little better and construction worse.

What of the eternal working man? In the early part of the six months period, employment showed an improvement over last year—not a heavy improvement—but enough to be noticeable. In the latter part it fell off a little. What it is for the month of June we cannot say as there are yet no figures available. Apparently there have been no serious lay-offs since the abandonment of NRA. And pay-rolls are somewhat better.

The Department of Labor has statistics on labor trends from economic factors, using 1923 to 1925 as its base period for comparison. According to these reports employment has reached 82 per cent. of what it was in 1923-1925. But production has risen to 86 per cent. of the 1923-1925 level. The total amount of pay-rolls has recovered to only 71 per cent. of the 1923 standard.

Here is a little table of immense significance. It gives the index numbers of production, used by the Federal Reserve Board, of employment and pay-rolls at three different periods—March, 1933, June, 1934 and May, 1935:

	Pro-duc-tion	Em-ploy-ment	Pay-rolls
March, 1933	60	59	37
June, 1934	83	81	65
May, 1935	86	82	71

From this we see first that production and employment went down about the same but that pay-rolls sank far lower—to 37. The favorable point in all this is that production rose from 37 to 71 and pay-rolls from 37 to 71. The unfavorable feature of this is that while production is now 10 points of the 1923-1925 level, employment has 18 points to go to reach it and pay-rolls have 29 points to go. Meantime prices have recovered more than pay-rolls so that the actual purchasing power of the pay-roll is even less than it seems.

Profits of those large business concerns which are available for inspection have fared better. This is not to say the small business enterprise has not done equally well. But we have no reports to judge by. The Federal Reserve Board has compiled the profits of 279 leading industrial enterprises. In the first quarter of 1933 these corporations sustained an aggregate loss of $52,400,000. In 1934, they made $117,800,000. In 1935 they made $154,800,000 in the first quarter. The railroads, however, continue to lose money and lost much more this year than last.

INFLATION SPURS STOCKS

BUT oddly enough while the trend of business activity has been down, the trend of security prices has been distinctly up. Fifty stocks which a year ago were priced at an average of 77.2 were recently priced at 90.62. The rise has taken place since March. From January to March the market sagged. But since March it has gone up steadily. The stock market went up, despite the decline in business activity, simply because the investing and speculating public has become convinced that a certain degree of inflation is inevitable. There has been, therefore, a steady movement of funds into common stocks ever since the agitation about the Pal-man bill touched off the inflationary scare.

Thus, to sum up, business has been rocking along these last 18 months within a narrow range and around about the same level. It is a little better than it was, though tending down. But it exhibits no dynamic energy as yet. No new industries appear. There have been no exceptional spurts anywhere save in the automobile industry. Construction still is the laggard. In fact every part of the industrial machine is definitely inert. Clearly something has happened to make business better than 1933 or 1934. The downward spiral of 1931 to 1933 has been checked There has been a lift. But it has not been a tremendous lift and much distance remains to be traveled before we can say recovery has been reached.

World conditions are about the same. England has done just about the same this half year as last. Germany has done better, but France has done worse. Italy is about the same.

SUCH IS LIFE—By Walt Munson

After getting a glimpse of the family who rented the cottage next door, something tells you that all plans for a nice, peaceful, quiet vacation will be very much upset.

PADDLE-WHEELER TOWED UP RIVER

PEACE RIVER, July 8.—Harry Weaver, with the "Beulah" gasboat, returned to town early Friday morning with the paddle-wheel steamer "Russian Navy" in tow.

The Russian Navy was stranded down the river from here several days ago with 20 passengers aboard, when she struck a submerged log and one of the rear pontoons was stove in. With only a river in high flood, the boat had been hugging the shore when the log struck and the pontoon began to sink, she was beached without mishap to passengers or cargo. Six of the passengers had previously been brought up by the gasboat "Unger." Among those who arrived Friday were Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan Lawrence of Fort Vermilion.

The Russian Navy, motorboat Weenusk also arrived back from Fort Vermilion Friday with a few passengers, some of whom took the train for Edmonton.

The town public works department on Friday re-established Main street connections across Pat's creek. Gangs of men with trucks rebuilt the approach as that one-half of the bridge is in use. It will be several weeks before the work of cleaning up flood debris is completed. Foot bridges across the creek will have to be rebuilt in many places.

ERSKINE, July 8.—The Whitney fox farm boasts of having a "tame" dog fox. The feeder can go to his cage and pick him up and the dog fox will follow. Woman Judge Will Take Part In New Penal Reform Program

Law barred its doors to Judge Helen Gregor McGill of Vancouver when she graduated from Toronto University, for the fact that she was the first woman to be graduated from Toronto was considered concession enough at that time. But, as she told the Bulletin Monday morning at an interview granted on her return from attending the first Canadian Penal Reform Congress in Montreal, nothing prohibited her from studying law independently. Today she is one of the few women judges in Canada, and as judge of the Juvenile Court in Vancouver and a pioneer in child welfare and reform work, she was sent by the Attorney-General of British Columbia to attend this first Canadian congress. Judges, magistrates, prison wardens, officers of prison welfare work, and John Howard societies and others are active in the new organization, with their object to promote reformative measures. Judge McGill was one of the speakers at the conference, describing to them the work of the Oakalla Prison Farm of British Columbia, which has instituted a training system for prisoners, fitting them at the end of their confinement to become once again, useful citizens within their community.

Speaking of the adaptation of the English Borstal system, Mrs. McGill referred to the reports submitted by General Ormond which have been favorably received following his survey of the system in England. At present General Ormond is engaged in a more exhaustive study of the plan which, it is hoped, may be instituted in federal penitentiaries in Canada. There will not necessarily be separate prisons and reform schools for the working of the system, as it has been generally supposed, but institution in the established Canadian prisons. Also the age limit which in Great Britain is 21 will be raised in Canada.

Speaking of her personal work in British Columbia, Mrs. McGill stated that although there are more cases in juvenile courts it does not indicate an increase in delinquency. The courts are socialized, and parents and relatives also bring there the cases for the ultimate protection of their children. Judge McGill points out often as possible to try these juveniles under the Infants Act, bringing to account neglectful parents, treating the young people as neglected children rather than delinquents. The Children's Aid is of great assistance when the case is treated and judged with particular attention, and Judge McGill spoke of being able to raise money to give a girl a course in commercial work, so that she might apply for employment as a graduate of a well known city school. An organization in the city supplies the money for her board, carfare and luncheon.

She has published a number of books on laws for women and children. The "Juvenile Courts in Canada," "Children in Industry" and other well known books have been compiled and published by Mrs. McGill. Juvenile Courts, she published in Illinois, has been translated into French and German, was printed in Geneva, and also published in the Philippine Islands.

As an eminent suffrage leader, her interest is naturally centered in the situation in Quebec, where women still cannot get the granting of the franchise. There are prominent leaders among the women who work for women's rights. Mme Pierre Cosgrain, wife of the Liberal whip, is one of the most brilliant. She is the daughter of Lady Forget, a staunch Roman Catholic, and intimately associated with a large body of women devoted to the same rights. Premier Taschereau objects strongly to the wife of the whip of the party in power, who his dictates, and informs Mme. Cosgrain that she should stay at home and look after her children more tirely.

Professor Carey Derick, of McGill University, with Dr. Ritchie England, one of the first women graduates of McGill, and Mme. Drummond are also strong leaders in the suffragette movement in Quebec.

Judge McGill was the guest on Monday of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. McConkey on her return to Vancouver from the east. She is one of the first women to receive a judgeship in Canada, where there are still very few women on the court bench.

Accountant Is Head Business Women's Club

CALGARY, July 8.—Miss Mary Mount, a Hamilton accountant, Saturday was elected president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, at the closing session of the annual convention here.

Niagara Falls was chosen convention city for 1937. At the Friday's session it was decided to hold the conventions biennially instead of annually.

Miss Mount, who succeeds Miss A. Josephine Dauphinee of Vancouver in the presidency, has been active in the federation's work since its formation six years ago. She has been president of the Hamilton club and vice-president of the Ontario branch of the federation.

HOSTESS AT LUNCHEON

Mrs. W. D. Herridge, wife of the Canadian Minister to Washington, is the hostess at luncheon at the Country Club, Ottawa, one day last week.

Waltz Time At The Country Club

Summer time parties with their setting of blossoms and star-spun skies and moonlight flooding the countryside, need a special sort of wardrobe of their own. There must be something magic and mystical about the soft, becoming and simple, yet devastating frocks for informal gaiety. An unusual evening gown (left) in white mousseline de soie has a tunic-like top and back panel of hand-blocked, black and white printed mousseline. Attec motif in the centre in a flattering dress of spongy green silk crepe with revers and floral trimming of white pique. The eyelet embroidered silk marquisette (right) in a cool-looking fresh tone has an extremely full, billowing skirt, with berthis collar and puff sleeves. It is trimmed with corsage of pansies and long sash of purple grosgrain ribbon.

RECENTLY an American city set a precedent by celebrating in honor of the retiring fire chief, Dominion Day was observed by the mayor, a picnic, tug-of-war, and all the trimmings. Undoubtedly hundreds of Canadians, scattered throughout the United States, recalled the many delightful and hilarious goings-on that marked the "Glorious Fourth." Two Edmontonians who certainly did their little bit to assist in the colorful celebrations were Mr. and Mrs. J. Roger Jenkins, who are enjoying a honeymoon trip in the United States and points south. Mrs. Jenkins was the former Margaret Hogan. On July fourth the travellers were in Agua Caliente, and were treated to crackers in a foreign country, roses and gay Mexican diversions along with 15,000 other visitors to the famous pleasure resort.

The race track had a great attendance, and the ponies caused plenty of excitement on the great day.

Speaking of holiday jaunts, we just heard that Miss Isabel Secord who went sailing off to Victoria as an all dream of doing, recently, happened to pick a ship on which the entertaining Mr. Noel Coward and the beautiful Miss Anne Harding were also passengers. Isn't it amazing how Edmontonians get themselves mixed up in the middle of celebrities' messes. Miss Secord reports that Mr. Coward stayed pretty much to himself, doing nothing startling all day, no doubt, two or three more "Cavalcades," "Private Lives" and "Conversation Pieces" between lunch and dinner. Which brings to mind the fact that the distinctive Mr. Coward has signed a movie contract, and will follow the golden gleam to Hollywood. One hears varying comments about his picture "The Scoundrel," chiefly that it is a rare dish for the ultra-sophisticated.

We must admit that the prominent socialites who returned from a dudish ranch holiday recently didn't appear to be any the worse for their enjoyment of the great open spaces in the much-publicized auto camps of the broad highway that leads to the Rockies. Mountain stars. They started off gaily, but record. Stay-ing at the ultra-smart lodges and the like, but decided toward the end of the jaunt that a few days in the auto camps might be a good deal more profitable fun who hasn't, on these motor trips?). The bride enjoyed a taste of the auto camp stove with other tourists, but still yearns to boast about. Anyway, it was all great fun and added lots of equipment to

All of which brings one to the point of remarking that one of the most delightful bits of equipment for any camping trip, to be prized above rubies and set up immediately after arrival at the spot is a sense of humor—L. C. D.

His Honor the Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Walsh left Government House Sunday evening for Calgary, where they are attending the Stampede. They will return to the city on Wednesday.

Last night I woke and found between us drawn—
Between us, where no mortal fear may creep—
The vision of Death dividing us in sleep.
And suddenly I thought, ere light shall dawn
Some day, the substance not the shadow of Death
Shall cleave us like a sword. The vision passed.
But all its newborn horror held me fast,
And still day broke I listened for your breath.
Some day to wake and find that you were dead
And pipings in the woods, and birds
Are things for memory to forget;
And that your living hands and mouth and eyes
Are part of all the world's old histories.
Dear God a little longer, ah, not yet.

—Edmund Gosse.

In spite of severe storms where the Girl Guides are encamped at Lac Ste. Anne, services were held in perfect order according to schedule on Sunday. Professional Women Score Relief Camps

"Our greatest task lies in keeping through the dogs of war," said Mrs. F. C. Casselman of Edmonton, guest speaker at the Saturday banquet. "We must know how much of taxation goes into the war budget and with sincerity and intelligence and fair minds open minds, seek to find a way out."

"Can we combine marriage and career?" Mrs. Casselman asked. "If we could, it would be a great thing for the nation, but with it we must couple a deeper love of home and motherhood and a broader view of national affairs."

STERILIZATION IS LAUDED AT BIG CONVENTION

CALGARY, July 6.—Sterilization is the only solution to the problem of mental deficiency's alarming increases, Dr. Clara Christie of Calgary declared here today during discussion of vital legislation at sessions of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs convention.

"We owe care to those alive but we don't owe a living to their children. Let's be candid and in commenting on the large families of imbecile and deficient parents. "We must set-educate public opinion that when the sterilization act is tested in the courts of law, it will have more chances of successful outcome."

Stating new amendments to the Alberta Marriage Act were unlikely to serve the purpose for which women's organizations in this province had worked, the speaker stated the necessity for a doctor's certificate of freedom from venereal disease, tuberculosis and other such disease, placed an unwarranted responsibility on the medical profession.

The average worker and not the highly paid executive should be considered under a retirement pension scheme, Mrs. Margaret Merrick Hall of Victoria said, and the scheme must be in the interests of economizing and elastic with basic contributions small enough to come within the income of the low wage-earner and complete security for dependents.

The Dominion unemployment insurance bill was seen by Miss P. L. Pue of Calgary as a definite step in the right direction. Miss Pue said, however, that if the $150,000,000 spent in direct relief had been diverted to the purpose of keeping and providing employment, public morale would have been kept up.

Here's Reason For Matrimonial Failure

What is the worst thing that a mother can do to her child? Spoiling it. Pampering it. Making it feel that it must have its own way and whatever it wants, regardless of the rights and comforts of others. Indulging its every whim and caprice.

The mother who spoils her children does them the deadliest wrong that one human being can do another, for she absolutely unfits them for life. Most of the failures in the world are the men and women who were spoiled children. Mother always removed the crumpled rose leaf from under their forty mattresses of down and their expected existence to be soft-padded for them the way she did it.

Dorothy Dix

She gave them everything they wanted on a silver salver and it never occurred to them that they would have to work and struggle to get their desires. She fed them on cake. So when they found out that they would have to toil and sweat to get even bread, and that nobody cared a hoot for their comfort or pleasure, they simply couldn't stand the gaff. They had no strength in them. They couldn't take discipline. They couldn't endure hardships. Mother's spoiling had turned them into slackers and quitters.

Nine-tenths of the divorces are the direct result of Mother's spoiling. Mother brings up Johnny to think that he is the kingpin of the universe and that all a woman is good for is to minister to his comfort and pleasure. She does all the hard chores around the house so he will be free to play with the boys. She draws his bath. She picks the seeds out of his jam. She blacks his shoes. She walks on him hand and foot. She takes all of his impudence without ever answering back.

In time Johnny grows up and gets married, and when he tries his spoiled-child tactics on his wife and treats her as he did his mother she hauls him into the divorce court.

The same thing happens when Mother spoils Mamie. While Mamie is still in the cradle Mother begins crawling on her stomach before her. She gives her everything she cries for, even if she knows it will hurt her. She turns her into a little tyrant before whom the whole household cringes. She never crosses Mamie's will. She wears shabby clothes that Mamie may have finery and walks so that Mamie may have the use of the automobile.

Mamie also grows up and marries, and when she finds out that her husband won't spoil her as her mother did and that he expects her to fulfill the responsibilities of marriage, she packs her trunk and hikes out to Reno. It is the spoiled boys and girls who get married who keep the divorce courts busy.

Another great wrong that mothers do their children is in not disciplining them when they are little and teaching them self-control. Mothers have an optimistic theory that it isn't necessary to teach children to control themselves, or to be brave, or unselfish, or obedient because when they are grown a miracle will occur that will turn little hellions into saintly angels. Of course, it never happens.

Another great wrong that mothers do children is in being too possessive. They want to monopolize their children. Often they don't want even the children's fathers to have any part in the youngsters. They want their children to look to them for everything, and to be rubber-stamps of themselves.

A mother will try to make her child just what she is and will deny it any good it is not to be ever. She will not leave it free to follow its own tastes and desires in choosing a career. She dooms it to failure because she forces it away from its natural bent. Many mothers are so possessive that they are not willing to have their children marry, and when they do, they often try to break up their homes.

And the sad part about these terrible things that mothers often do to their children is that they are done in love, and because the mother is so obsessed by her passion for her child that she cannot see what she is doing to it.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL. COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

The sea man's wand was waved around. "Now, tots, it will be safe and sound for you to dive down deep," he shouted to the Tinymites.

"The water will not hurt you, as I'll stand here till I see you go. And then I'll come and take you to where you can see some sights."

"Here goes," yelled Scouty Tinymite. And then he dove right out of sight. The others shortly followed him. It was a lot of fun.

"Ha, ha," laughed Copply. "I'm in trim to take a dandy little swim, I'm pretty good at back strokes. Watch! I'll show you how it's done."

They played around for quite a while and then the sea man, with a smile, swam up and said, "How goes it? Do you all feel safe down here?"

"Of course we do," said Goldy. "Gee, it really is a mystery how we can stay below the water, with no thought of fear."

Oh, my strange wand fixed things that way. I knew that you would love to play with funny fish," the man replied, "and soon that's what you'll do.

"Down at the bottom of the sea, all of the fish are ruled by me. I now will call a boat that will hold every one of you.

"It's rather far to swim, you see, and we can make it easily by letting my water nymph take you all for a ride."

And then he clapped his hands and said, "He's coming, now, total Look ahead." Real soon a little shell boat pulled up to the Tinies' side.

"Hop in," the nymph cried. "I will row, and all around the sea we'll go. No matter what comes near us, don't let it give you a scare."

The whole gang quickly hopped aboard, and shortly Dotty loudly roared, "My, what a funny place this is. Strange fish are everywhere."

Waffles Easily Made Only If You Know How

By MARY E. DAGUE

Lucky is the bride who numbers a waffle iron among her wedding gifts. Crisp, golden waffles delight the diner from breakfast to the after-movie party and even have a place in the main course or dessert.

Rice waffles and creamed chicken or creamed fish, plain waffles and maple syrup or honey; waffles and crushed berries, chocolate waffles and ice cream; ginger waffles and whipped cream, and later in the season, green corn waffles, are just a few of the luscious combinations possible.

And most important, waffles always can be made at the last minute, so they hold first rank of emergency dishes.

Because waffle batter is a pour batter, it's much more convenient to mix it in a pitcher and pour it on the waffle iron rather than dip it with a spoon from the mixing bowl. The lipped bowls are attractive and I find them easier to beat in than a straight-sided pitcher.

WIPE, DON'T WASH

Never wash a waffle iron! The metal must be seasoned before using, but after that, even this material should not be washed. After each baking wipe with soft crinkled paper and remove all crumbs with a stiff brush kept for the purpose.

Plain waffles with creamed salmon and fresh peas make a delicious luncheon for a summer noon when the weather suddenly turns cool.

I remember one evening I had planned to serve waffles because because the weather had been almost unbearably hot. Early in the evening a thunder storm came up and then he clapped his hands and said, "He's coming, now, total Look ahead." Real soon a little shell boat pulled up to the Tinies' side.

For ginger waffles add ½ cup molasses, 1 teaspoon ginger and ½ cup sugar. Increase flour to 1½ cups and soda to 2-3 teaspoon.

DINNER: Fillet of flounder broiled and served with lemon butter, spaghetti timbales, apple ring salad, chocolate waffles with ice cream, milk, coffee.

CANDIED CARROTS

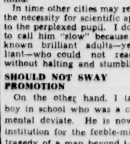

The sweet potato is apt to be a little tasteless during the summer months, but not so the carrot. Try this and see if you have not found a nice summer substitute for candied sweets. Scrape and cook young carrots until tender. Cut in halves and roll in granulated sugar. Fry in butter until browned on all sides. Serve on a hot platter garnished with watercress or parsley.

Your Children -

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Interest has been stirred by the recent article about some children's difficulty in mastering reading, in which I commended the New York Board of Education for its insight into the psychological results of poor reading, tracing mental confusion and emotional disturbance to its early beginnings.

O. R. Barton

With some six thousand pupils in this new class the educators have had remarkable results. Perhaps their methods vary according to natural ability or actual mental deviation of the student, but they have proved that early confusion in any study leaves lamentable traces on character and mind.

In time other cities may recognize the necessity for scientific approach to the retarded pupil. I don't like to call him "slow" because I have known brilliant adults—yes, brilliant—who did not read aloud without halting and stumbling.

SHOULD NOT SWAY PROMOTION

On the other hand, I taught a boy in school who was a complete mental deviate. He is now in an institution for the feeble-minded, a tragedy of a man beyond help. Yet he could easily, could spell well, and play the piano, too. He had the faculty of memory, but reason was deficient.

The ability to read well or to do it poorly is no proof of brain caliber as far as I can see and I am convinced it is unfair to set so much store on it when it comes to reports and promoting.

A mother asks me how she can help at home.

Parents can help, but I believe the best results must be obtained where there are other children present. Namely, the class. The reason for this is that a confusion born of terrified reaction to an audience of pupils can best be uprooted under the same conditions.

I used to do this: There were, generally speaking, about five very poor readers in a room of forty or fifty. When they got up to read, I suffered more than they did. Usual, for they were children about average in other studies. At the beginning of the term, I would say to the room, "Children, reading out loud is a peculiar thing. It is different from most studies, and when you grow bigger you will know more about it."

BUILDING UP CONFIDENCE

By divers methods I made the reading lesson a lively affair so that it seldom turned out to be a monotonous drone as too many such recitations are. To the slow ones I said, "Look over the next sentence." It was always an easy and rather short one. I did not harangue. When Harry or William bumped through it aloud later, I would try to say in all honesty, "That's splendid. You are getting better every day." What I was after was not good reading but to coax into confidence the dying spark of pride.

Reading is important but not as important as surety of self. Parents trying to coach for the summer should go back to beginnings, if they are careful not to make the child feel ashamed. Get him used to sight-reading by making up easy, one-word sentences, very short and thus exercise the co-ordination between eye and tongue. Gradually, very gradually, add to length, not to syllables. Then work in some double-barrelled words. If that is too much go back again.

What's What

Question—Is it or isn't it out of bounds for any two speakers to hold a conversation in a foreign language at a dinner when neither host nor other guests understand what is said? I have a bet on this; I hope I win. PAUL X.

Answer—In street cars, in trains, in any public thoroughfare, or even at a restaurant table, foreigners may converse in their native tongue without giving offense to others, but it is not evil to do that in any social environment, unless the speakers are unfamiliar with the speech of the country. The chief objection against speaking any foreign language (when mingling on terms of social equality with people who do not comprehend the talk) is its gross rudeness, equivalent to shutting a door in the face of the listeners and holding a secret conference behind that door. Judging from the tone of your question, you should win.

Question—My son—a travelling salesman—has become engaged to a girl a thousand miles away. He asks me to write a cordial note to her, though she is a complete stranger to me. How can I do this? I. M.

Answer—A friendly note—not necessarily a note of unqualified approval—may be also a letter of inquiry, tactfully worded. Chance engagements of this sort are in danger of impermanency, so the mother need commit herself beyond saying that F. has asked her to write and that she regrets the long distance which makes it impossible for her to make a personal call. She may add, "Do tell me something about yourself and your family, so that I may feel better acquainted with you."

Well Kept Fingernails Give Beauty To Hands

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

"Dear Miss Glad: For the last six months, I have been using a good liquid polish on my fingernails. Previously, my nails had a lovely natural lustre of their own. And when I first started using the liquid polish on them, my mother warned me that the continued use of such polish would destroy the natural gloss of the nails. Of course, at the time, I was rather dubious about her statement. But my nails have now become dull and faded-looking. Is it really the fault of the liquid polish? FOUTH."

If you are using a good, reliable polish, I do not think that it would cause the nail condition you describe. The fault probably lies in the fact that, due to the finished appearance that the liquid polish gives, you have discarded the practice of buffing your nails. The buffing of the nails should never be overlooked, as it is essential to both the health and beauty of the nails. Continued buffing will bring out the lovely lustre of the nails and will also stimulate the circulation.

Moreover, you should massage your nails nightly with a good lubricant. A bit of warmed olive oil massaged into the base of each nail will help to correct the dull, dry condition of which you write. Buff your nails briskly before you apply your liquid polish, too. For this practice will provide a smoother surface for the application of the enamel, and will give your nails a lovely under-lustre.

"Dear Miss Glad: I've just finished following that excellent reducing course outlined in your 'New Figure' booklet, and it certainly has proved a god-send to me. I've not only succeeded in losing my 28 excess pounds, but succeeded in losing them from the right places. And now my figure is not only slender, but firm and symmetrical as well. However, I foolishly bleached my hair not so long ago, and it really doesn't become me at all. Is there anything that I can do to restore my hair to its natural color?

"GRATEFUL."

To my knowledge, there is no sort of a preparation that will remove a bleach from the hair. You will have to wait for your hair to grow out to its natural color. However, if you do not want the embarrassment of going about with two different shades of hair, I would suggest that you go to a reliable beauty shop and have your hair dyed back to its nature hue. If you have the work done by an expert in a dependable shop, the bleached hair can be dyed to perfectly match the natural color of the roots. Then have weekly or fortnightly hot oil shampoos to nourish the hair-roots and the scalp and to keep the hair soft and glossy.

DAILY TRUE STORY

POSTHUMOUS CHARITY

By Llewellyn Bronson

Three gentlemen of leisure, who toiled not, nor spun nary an income tax a thought, felt the freight slowing down and knew they were nearing the last stop outside the New England village of Belton.

As the train came to a stop, the trio clambered over the side of an empty coal gondola, dropped to the embankment and made their way down a path to the hobo brook where was located a "hobo jungle."

Contrary to general belief, the three men proceeded to bathe and get rid of an accumulation of road dust.

"Okey-Dokey," said "Duke" Lane, "let's get busy."

Getting busy, in the parlance of these free-born gentlemen of the rods and blind baggage, meant going out and scaring up whatever they could in the way of vegetables, bits of meat and other edibles. Some they got in the form of back-door handouts, some by skillful pilfered from delivery cars when the drivers were in the house delivering orders. All were of the usual devious means known to the veteren hoboes.

HAMILTON DEAD

"Whiz" Smith, so named because he was the antithesis of speed, said, "Hey, this burg's Belton. I got a friend here, nice old guy. He'll always slips me somethin'" cash if his housekeeper is around because she's a Tartar, or plenty good grub if she happens to be out."

"How come, Whiz?"

"Found him dishin' down at the dam below his house, five years ago, he was old and feeble then and he's older in. Couldn't eat th' old geezer drown, could I?"

"Hero, huh?" grunted Duke Lane. "I forgot I got a gin rummy pal who helped him home. At least twice a Summer since then I've hit this burg and got somethin' swell from him."

"Go to it," Duke ordered, "and if the old geezer slips you coin, don't buy nothin' until you see what we've rustled up."

He turned up School Street, came to the old mill and the dam, where, five years before, he had saved old Mr. Hamilton from drowning, and knew that he had but a few more houses to pass before he would be there.

He took it easy and hoped that the old man's housekeeper would be there because that would mean that he would hand out money instead of food and he could always hide three or four bits from the others and be sure of his smokes.

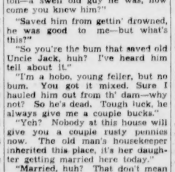

He recognized the house.

As he came nearer he stopped and stared.

Then he muttered a rather profane word.

"Just my luck—the old man has passed on—this must be his funeral," he said to himself.

There were at least a dozen cars parked in the yard and many more out along the curb.

Whiz looked around for the hearse but couldn't see any. He spied a chauffeur in a large, expensive car, and went over to him.

"So this is old Mr. Hamilton's funeral, eh, Buddy?" Whiz asked.

The chauffeur grinned at him.

"Three month ago, Skipper, three months ago they buried Mr. Hamilton—a swell old guy he was, how come you knew him?"

"Saved him from gettin' drowned, he was good to me—but what's this?"

"So you're the bum that saved old Uncle Jack, huh? I've heard him tell about it."

"I'm a bum, young feller, but no bum. You got it mixed. Sure I hauled him out from th' dam—why not, he's dead. Tough luck, he always give me a couple bucks."

"Yeh? Nobody at this house will give you a cough nasty peanut now. The old man's housekeeper inherited this place, it's her daughter getting married here today."

"Married, huh? That don't mean nothin' to me. Could you spare me——"

"Sorry, I couldn't. I'm flatter than a flounder under a steam roller, but here's some smokes."

The chauffeur divided a package of cigarettes.

good to me, even after he croaked," Whiz announced.

"How do you mean—good," Duke asked.

"This was one of the old man's shoes, but it must have been from a few spare bucks in it on's his housekeeper wouldn't get it."

Whiz had guessed correctly.

Duke Lane, who had quite an education, said, "That's what you'd call posthumous charity."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Feeling Fine

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks gloomy.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 96.

"Suppose anybody in the kitchen would—"

"They would not. Nobody there now, they're having a sort of reception, they'll be out soon. Mrs. Simpson—she's the dame that inherited the place from old Uncle Jack, it lighter than the enamel on a hound's tooth."

"Tough—and some poor sap's getter hooked, huh?"

"Yep—nice kid. He—"

The door opened and some young folks came out, laughing and screaming. They came down and attached the "Just Married" sign to the car, along with some jangling tin cans.

In the house three young people had sneaked upstairs to an old closet, looking for shoes to throw. Mrs. Simpson had whispered to them that they might clean out the shoes Mr. Hamilton left, as he had a lot of them.

There was a great deal of laughing and shouting and the chauffeur got out and opened the door. Then he got back and started the motor. The newly-weds would want to get into the car in all speed and get away from there before the shower of rice and old shoes became too heavy for comfort.

The couple finally appeared at the door.

Rice began to shower on the couple and, amid shouts and cheers, then ran down the walk and made for the car.

NEWLYWEDS

Then it was that the old shoes began to fly, a rubber boot, a couple long, soft leather boots and other odds and ends. One young man nudged his girl friend, indicated Whiz and said, "Watch me wing that hobo!"

He did exactly that. An ancient congress shoe landed against the jaw of Whiz and made him stagger back. He picked up the shoe with an idea of slamming it back into the crowd, but he changed his mind.

"Souvenerr," he said, and stuck the shoe in his pocket and went away from there.

Back in the bushes by the stream, before he came to the jungle, Whiz dug a roll of bills out of that shoe. He had seen them when he picked it up.

"Ninety dollars!" Whiz muttered. He secreted six ten dollar bills in the lining of his clothes and went to the jungle.

"Thirty bucks—the old man was

Mass Meeting of Marchers From Regina Makes New Decision

CALGARY, July 8—Seventy-six members of the on-to-Ottawa relief strikers' march were receiving food and lodging from the Alberta relief commission Sunday following their decision to register Monday to go to government relief camps.

The men who arrived here early Saturday on the Canadian Pacific railway special train carrying relief marchers back to their homes and relief camps from Regina refused to sign Saturday morning to go to the camps.

Later at a mass meeting they changed their decision and relief officials agreed to supply food and shelter until Monday morning when the men could register.

More than 125 marchers left the special train at Calgary but only 76 registered and it was believed the remainder went to homes or found lodging with friends.

Foreign Ministry For Canada Is Falconer Hope

OTTAWA, July 8. — Hope that Canada would establish a separate "ministry of foreign affairs," was expressed by Sir Robert Falconer, president of the League of Nations Society, here last night.

"We have advanced," he said, "beyond the stage as which departments promoting agriculture, fisheries, mining and the military, naval and air services—parts only of our defence system—are enough.

"As Great Britain has appointed a minister of League of Nations Affairs, Canada also might surely participate more fully in its affairs. While the effects of Italian and Japanese policies may seem remote from Canadians, we cannot be sure that they would not involve us in serious consequences. Therefore we should at once take our part as a people more fully in consideration of world affairs."

Claim Mussolini Seeks To Rouse Arab Tribes Against British Rule

Offers Aid to Ibn Saud's Ambitions For United Arab Empire

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Bulletin Staff Foreign Writer

ROME, July 8.—Baffled by Great Britain's opposition to its expansionist plans in Abyssinia, the Italian government has begun the extra-dangerous game of inciting the mighiest tribes of Arabia against England's authority in the Near East.

A secret letter has just been made public in Jerusalem from the contents of which it becomes clear that Mussolini intends to set himself up as the champion of Pan-Islam. The letter contained a promise on the part of the Italian government Arabian claims for independence in the event of a conflict in the Near East. The Arabs of Palestine and Transjordania are promised "liberation from the English yoke."

There is no doubt today that Italy has won over Ibn Saud, the Lord of Arabia, King of the Hedjaz, to her side. Ibn Saud is furnishing Mussolini with a ntingent of troops for the conquest of Abyssinia. Last year, in the war between Yemen and Ibn Saud, Italy supported the former. But since Yemen has been defeated, Mussolini has shifted his friendship to the conqueror.

Pierre Van Paassen

WOULD HEAD MOSLEMS

Ibn Saud will fight on Italy's side on the promise of support for his project of uniting all the Arabic tribes under his sceptre. Ibn Saud, who never was friendly to Great Britain, dreams of restoring the Kalifate; that is to say he wants to become the spiritual head of all the Mohammedans in the world. In the Near East part the Arab of Turkey was secured comfortable seats for both performances. The crowds who attended the Capitol proves without a shadow of doubt the popularity of this great little screen star. She provides perfect entertainment for every member of the family, no matter how young or how old they may be. To tell you the story of "Our Little Girl" would spoil everything. Just take it for granted that you will enjoy the bill of fare starting at the Capitol theatre today and Tuesday. On the same bill will be found a very interesting array of short subjects including an Our Gang comedy, a Mickey Mouse cartoon, the Capitol News and specialty film of vaudeville.

Kulif-ul-Islam. He represented the supreme authority in religious matters to all Mohammedans in the world. When Kemal Pasha and the Young Turks deposed the sultan they also abolished the Kalifate. Since that time the office of supreme religious head of the Mohammedans has remained vacant.

It can easily be imagined what it would mean to Great Britain with her hundreds of millions of Mohammedan subjects in India and Africa if these people came to stand under the religious authority of Ibn Saud, the most fanatical Moslem to have appeared in Arabia for centuries, who is hostile to Britain, and in addition this Ibn Saud a tool in the hands of Signor Mussolini.

The Saudian support of Mussolini and the union of the fighting forces of the mighitest Arabic kingdom with those of Italy is the gravest issue yet to come out of the Abyssinian embroglio. We can see now that Great Britain is directly involved and that the firm stand taken by Mr. Anthony Eden against Mussolini's plans for conquering Abyssinia was not dictated in the first place by a regard for the sanctity of treaties or our of concern for the authority of the League of Nations.

The intrigues of Signor Mussolini—there is a so no other word for it but intrigues—are directly at the heart of the British Empire. For the Middle East is the heart of the empire, its most vital nerve-centre. When Britain opposes Mussolini today she is defending one of the key-positions of her world-power.

Mussolini's support of Ibn Saud means bringing back to life the dream of an Arabic empire ,under the Hedjah king. This is stirring Arabic nationalism everywhere—and that is Mussolini's aim. For the more restless the 'rabs become, the surer is Great Britain to be involved in difficulties. We should get it definitely out of our heads that Britain is merely protesting against Mussolini's flamboyant speeches. The speeches don't matter so much—we don't even listen to them, and British statesmen, with their sense of realism, have always valued them at their proper worth. Mussolini is plotting actively. He is proceeding from words to acts.

SECRET LETTER BARED

In Palestine the publication of the secret letter above referred to produced deep consternations. There is no question of the letter's authenticity. The chief Arabic newspaper in Jerusalem has published a photostatic copy of it and reveals clearly that the Duce has for a long time been working on Arabic national sentiment. The Zionists feel that a new latent threat to the existence and peaceful evolution of the Jewish national home in Palestine has been introduced by Mussolini's mixture in Arabic affairs. That threat, fortunately still latent, may become active and potent any moment.

By posing as the champion of Mohammeddism, Mussolini also expects to drive a wedge into the unified sentiment of the Abyssinian people. The Italian government boasts that it is assured of the support of two Abyssinian princes, who are Mohammedans. These men, rulers of kingdoms which nominally owe allegiance to the emperor of Abyssinia, are said to be ready to betray their liege lord, the Emperor Hailie Selassie, when hostilities start, because he is a Christian.

It is rather strange on the whole to see Mussolini in the role of lord-protector of Islam, after his government has destroyed Moslem religious institutions in Cyrenaica and Libya with a ruthlessness and a pouring out of innocent blood too ghastly to describe.

ITALY MOSLEM'S CHAMPION?

Italy proposes itself as the champion of Mohammedanism in the world. The German Emperor, Wilhelm II, placed at that game in the days gone by, and also in the hope of rousing Great Britain's Moslem subjects against the empire. The kaiser came to rue the day and so will Duce Mussolini if he persists in his present course.

But there you are. While German fascism keeps Europe on tenterhooks with its monstrous armament campaign and its threats to left and right, Italian fascism has precipitated the world into a serious crisis with the threat of war in the offing. Yet there are people who aver blandly that fascism means peace and order and decency.

If Germany were a social-democracy, and Italy also, instead of being helpless captives in the hands of two chauvinist firebrands, do you think the world would be hovering on the brink of the abyss today? Fascism alone is responsible for the critical situation in which mankind finds itself today.

ABERHART SAYS LYMBURN CONCEALING DOUGLAS LETTERS

Alleges Only Part Of Correspondence Revealed To Public

Social Credit Leader Demands Attorney - General Make Entire Correspondence Known Attends Big Saturday Rally Here.

Charging that Hon. J. F. Lymburn, K.C., attorney general had made public only a portion of the correspondence between Major C. H. Douglas and the attorney general relative to the Douglas opinion on Aberhart social credit proposals, William Aberhart, B.A., leader of the Alberta social credit political movement, in a radio address Sunday, demanded that the minister reveal the entire correspondence.

EXTRACT SUBMITTED

Hon. Mr. Lymburn submitted to Major Douglas an extract from one of Mr. Aberhart's radio addresses, asking him to express an opinion on the feasibility of applying the proposals to this province.

The Minister then made public the extract and a letter he received from Major Douglas. Mr. Aberhart now claims there is further correspondence on the subject.

5,000 ATTEND

Featured by sports and speeches, a rally and picnic of Edmonton Social Credit forces at the exhibition grounds Saturday afternoon and evening was attended by 5,000 people.

William Aberhart, addressed the gathering in the evening and the afternoon was occupied with sports and races.

Processing taxes or a tax on the "unearned increment" would provide the money necessary for basic dividends under Social Credit, said Mr. Aberhart in his Saturday night address.

For example, it would be possible to levy a 65-cent tax on a bushel of wheat selling at 60 cents. The tax, he said, would be five cents to the farmer after he had received the "just price," 10 cents to the miller and 50 cents to the baker, made up by one cent on each loaf of bread.

FREQUENT APPLAUSE

The gallery cheered loudly when Mr. Aberhart denounced the so-called "50 big shots," who, he said, owned Canada, or made some major point in his social credit outline.

He said he was unable to understand critics who had likened his plan to "pulling rabbits out of a hat."

To Mr. Aberhart it was as simple as A, B, C.

He said that Professor G. A. Elliott, of the University of Alberta, had testified before the agricultural committee that the value of Alberta's production was $180,000,000 a year. Assuming, Mr. Aberhart said, that $140,000,000 was needed to purchase clothe and shelter every person in Alberta, there would be $40,000,000 left for the more enterprising and industrious.

Then they ask where the money is coming from?" he added.

McPHERSON INCIDENT

Mr. Aberhart instructed his followers to pay no attention to pamphlets issued by his opponents. They should ignore "men who would try to deceive them," he decreed.

"O. L. McPherson tried to question me at a meeting in Lethbridge and you read in your newspaper today how people hooted him," smiled Mr. Aberhart referring to the incident when McPherson tried to question Mr. Aberhart on his plan, the latter appealed to his supporters to stop the question and McPherson was howled down.

Mr. Aberhart complimented northern Alberta on his Social Credit organization, but he said, organization was not enough.

"Our help must come from above," he said.

MUST BE CHANGE

"You must first decide that there must be a change and then be convinced that a change is possible. My heart is heavy over the treatment of the young unemployed men on their Ottawa march. All they asked was work and wages. But they must realize there can never be work for them. The technocrats have told us, and I earnestly believe it, that if mechanics were allowed to run at only 75 per cent efficiency, there would only be enough work to engage the men between 25 and 45 years of age for two hours a day; and no work for anyone else." Mr. Aberhart said.

He condemned the "system" for attempting a solution by destroying food, such as wheat, coffee and pork, which God had provided to feed His people.

He said it would not be necessary to have $120,000,000 to pay this amount of basic dividends annually to Alberta citizens.

ON'Y NEED $10,000,000

"The most that would be needed would be $10,000,000—the flow of credit would do the rest," said he.

The Canadian tariffs, he said, meant a gain of $41,000,000 a year and another $40,000,000 a year to Ontario and a loss of $19,000,000 to Alberta. If Alberta could give $19,000,000 a year to help Ontario and Quebec, couldn't it give $10,000,000 to help her own people? he asked.

It was, he said, that Alberta did not consume all her products, but a processing tax could be added to imports.

It had been definitely established, he claimed, that the "bogey" that it was constitutionally impossible to establish Social Credit in Alberta had been refuted.

In the picnic staged at exhibition grounds Saturday, a program of sports, platform attractions, children's races and carnival features filled the afternoon.

Presentation of an illuminated address of welcome to Mr. Aberhart featured the platform program. The address was read by C. Gould and the inscribed text presented by D. W. S. Hall, president of the Edmonton S. C. organization. A brief response was made by Mr. Aberhart. A basket of flowers was presented to Mrs. Aberhart by two children which were followed by a dancing ballet, Dolores Love and Ronald Reid.

Grouping of 20 children from the Jordan school of dancing provided an exhibition of minuets, waltzes, military dances, Highland fling, Irish reel costumes, tap dances and acrobatic numbers.

"S. C." HORSE WINS

A comedy race, run by four horses, carrying political plays, delighted Social Credit adherents. The Social Credit stable produced the winner while the Liberal horse came second with the Conservative placing third. The U.F.A. horse was so far in the rear that it was marked as "also ran."

A long series of running races for children of all ages was run off and prizes distributed. There was also a motorcycle race and a girl's softball game. Empire baseball team defeated Gibbons 8-6.

Scattered about the sawdust walk in front of the grandstand, which was filled to mid-afternoon, were numerous booths, house and ring-toss games, hot-dog stands and soft drink parlors. Surveys were about there were displayed signs urging all to boost Social Credit while attendants all displayed S. C. ribbons.

PROSPECTIVE CANDIDATES THERE

Excitement about the picnic grounds were the numerous prospective candidates. Wearing ribbons about their lapels, Social Credit hopefuls Needs Social Credit" or "Aberhart and Social Credit" were Ex-Ald. Rice Sheppard, Dr. C. W. Willis, D. B. Mullen and others.

The crowd included many parties who had motored in a considerable distance and at the supper hour many families used the park facilities for a basket lunch in the open.

ABERHART IS GIVEN LIE BY MR. LYMBURN

Attorney - General Denies Douglas Correspondence Concealed

Complete and unequivocal denial was given on Monday by Hon. J. F. Lymburn, K.C., attorney general, to the charge of William Aberhart, B.A., leader of the Alberta social credit political movement, that any portion of the correspondence between Major C. H. Douglas and Prime Minister relative to Aberhart social credit proposals was concealed.

Mr. Aberhart, in a radio address over the week-end declared the Minister had in his possession another letter from Major Douglas, hitherto withheld, and Mr. Aberhart coupled this statement with a demand that it be published.

"That is the only letter I have ever received from Major Douglas and that is all of the letter. Furthermore the letter was not altered one jot or tittle and it is ridiculous to state otherwise."

Elsewhere it was learned that the Minister is having a photostat print made of the Aberhart address extract and the Douglas letter in order to prove his statement and "show that Mr. Aberhart had no evidence on which to base his allegation."

SECOND FLIGHT TO FLOOD AREA

Second flight to and from the flood - isolated district around Grande Prairie was completed Saturday by Pilot Lgois Leigh in a Canadian Airways Ltd. Fairchild.

Leigh arrived back at Cooking Lake base late in the afternoon with Mr. Ryley of the Edmonton post office, who had charge of distributing mail from the air-plane.

Leigh plans to leave again Monday with express and supplies for the Grande Prairie area.

The pilot reports that the flood situation is become even more serious as the result of two inches of rainfall since Saturday.

Man Arrested On Theft Charges

Sought since June 28, when he is alleged to have broken into a box car in the C. N. R. freight yards between 96 and 97 streets, Frank Berschied was arrested Sunday night by Constables H. Lytle and A. Johnson. In his possession were found two 56-pound boxes of butter, two packages of corn flakes and two tins of soup, which were taken from the box car. Berschied appeared in police court Monday on two charges of theft.

ELECTION DATE NOT YET FIXED

Date of the provincial general election was not announced on Monday, Premier R. G. Reid announced at the conclusion of a cabinet meeting. Rumors regarding the announcement before Tuesday at any rate he said. Hon. Hugh Allen, minister of lands and mines, left later in the day for the Peace River area and an announcement may not be forthcoming for a day or so.

In the meantime opinion still inclines to a vote not later than the middle of August, with August 13, 14, 15 or 16 the most likely dates.

Railway Commission Reserves Decision

Board of Railway Commissioners, sitting at the courthouse here Saturday, reserved decision on the application of Canadian National Railways to abandon about 32 miles of the line between Edmonton and Alberta Beach, known as the Lac Ste. Anne subdivision.

Henry Issacs, aged 4, result of diminished traffic was claimed by the solicitor for the railways, D. O. Lewis.

The application was vigorously opposed by residents, chiefly farmers, along the line it is proposed to abandon.

4-Year-Old Boy Hurt In Accident

George Wiles, aged four, Campbell block, 10544 - 96th street, escaped with only slight injuries when he was knocked down by a car on 101 avenue and dragged 10 feet by the bumper, the car stopping in this distance. The accident occurred at 7 p.m. Sunday, the driver of the car being August Springer, R.R. 2, Fort Saskatchewan. The car were Mrs. J. H. Penelton, R.R. 2, Fort Saskatchewan, owner of the car, and her two daughters, Violet and Effie. The child received a slight injury to his right leg and a bump on the left side of his head.

Gleaned From Today's News

Hon. Hugh W. Allen, minister of lands and mines, left on Monday afternoon for a several days visit to the Peace River territory. He will be back by the end of the week.

Tenders for completion of the Jasper highway will be called within the next couple of days, Hon. J. J. MacLellan, minister of public works, stated on Monday. Departmental officials are getting the last of the necessary information together prior to calling for tenders.

A. A. MacKenzie, chairman of the Alberta Relief Commission, is a patient at the University hospital, suffering from an attack of influenza. It was made known on Monday. He had been ill a. his home for several days and over the week-end was removed to hospital and on Monday was reported as still running a temperature. Hospital authorities declared his condition was not serious.

The "monsters of the deep," meaning the fish in Cold Lake, got a break last week-end when road roads defeated the efforts of a judicial fishing party headed by His Lordship Mr. Justice Tweedie, from reaching its destination. The party were unable to get a grocer 6 miles beyond St. Paul and returned empty-handed to the city Saturday night.

17 STRIKERS TO HAVE JOBS OFFERED THEM

Will be Cared for by Province if Willing to Work

Seventeen of the 31 relief strikers who hopped off the "Ottawa special" here on Saturday morning are to be offered work, Hon. Hugh W. Allen, minister of lands and mines, and in charge of relief, announced on Sunday.

The minister stated that the province had agreed to look after these men over the week-end and provide them with bed tickets.

ONE LEFT TOWN

The minister said that, "When these men were called up on Monday it was found that one man apparently had left town; 17 were previously registered here and 13 had no previous registration here with some actually coming from Regina.

He said the 17 men previously registered here were being offered work, and if they accepted, would be cared for, but unwilling to work they would be struck off relief rolls.

"We are not recognizing any responsibility for those who were not previously registered here," he said.

ONE UNDER 20

Of the 17 men recognized one was under 20; two between 21 and 25 years; two between 26 and 30, and the others were more than 31. Five were Canadian born; one British born, and 11 foreign born. Eight of the 17 had actually left relief camps to join the strikers. One only was a returned man.

The strikers who returned to Calgary are being treated similarly to those returning here, he said.

Police Court

Arrested Sunday night by Constables H. Lytle and A. Johnson where he was camped alongside the C.N.R. tracks, west of 95 street, Frank Berschied, 23, pleaded guilty to two thefts of butter from box cars in the freight yards, and was remanded to Tuesday for sentence.

Berschied made full admission of the thefts, stating that on June 28 he had broken a box car seal and taken two 56 boxes of butter. Saturday night he took another box from a car but on this occasion was found by police before he broken. He had a supply of standard dairy butter wrappers with him and said he was re-wrapping the butter. When Constable Lytle said in the witness stand that he did not remember the accused's name, Berschied supplied the information, saying it was near Hunter Sask.

Gustav Skov, who was found camping with Berschied and arrested on a vagrancy charge, was also remanded to Tuesday.

Adjournment to July 11 was given Edith Crawford, charged with keeping a disorderly house, and Julia Munro, charged as an inmate, meeting.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Although not assigned by the editor to do so, The Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter, about holidays, curiosity than anything else, loafed around Social Credit headquarters and looked over the big picnic Saturday afternoon, studied those who were in attendance and then wondered how far Aberhart's $25-per-month fanaticism had gone.

The B. I. R. found out by asking both Social Credit-ites and their opponents.

The replies follow below:

ED STRANGE, Social Credit-er from St. Paul: "Social Credit will get the vote of every man and woman in Alberta who has nothing to lose and everything to gain."

WILLIAM SHERMAN, Social Credit-er from Camrose: "Although many profess not to understand Mr. Aberhart's scheme, they will be figured out by applying the same reasoning used to solve the question, 'How long is a piece of string?' The answer is simple—twice as long as the distance from the centre to either end. Our $25 dividends are arrived at in the same way, by means of a comparative measuring stick."

ALEX ROBERTSON, salesman: "I believe that the key to Mr. Aberhart's esteem of Mr. Aberhart as a financial and economic sage, as a radio crusader, as a miner of politics and religion, that he and his followers regard his ascendancy as a foregone coming. Social Credit supporters use about as much reason as a whirling dervish when it comes to answering criticism of their movement."

BRAD BAKER, traveller: "The only thing that has prevented Mr. Aberhart from conquering out with the battlecry of 'Every man a King' is that the more showmanship Mr. Aberhart has had the better he is."

JAMES POWELL, Social Credit-er from St. Paul: "Mr. Aberhart is almost Christ-like in his unselfishness. He has no political ambitions for himself. He is giving his time and energies and talent for organization to Albertans out of the goodness of his heart and as such deserves support."

POWER PLANT PLANS WILL COST $5,000

Commissioners Recommend Expenditure For Specifications

Recommendation that $5,000 be set aside to meet the cost of drafting plans, specifications and other preliminary work for the proposed extension of the city power plant has been made by commissioners and will be referred to city council Monday night for a decision.

The Edmonton Tax Research Bureau, in a letter to the city, objects to the expenditure, pointing out that all necessary plans for such an extension were prepared some time ago by the late Wm. Cunningham, former superintendent of the plant.

Application of Canada Packers, Ltd., for the purchase of additional land in North Edmonton in connection with the erection of the company's plant has been received by commissioners. Purchase price of the extra land is $500.

Commissioners are recommending that a bylaw be passed to permit lumber yards to observe the week-ly half-holiday on Saturday afternoon instead of Wednesday.

BEAR QUESTION UNDER REVIEW

No decision has yet been reached by the city on the question of what is to be done with four bears who need a new $1,500 home at the Edmonton Zoo, it was disclosed Monday by Mayor J. A. Clarke. The Zoological Society has the matter under review at present, city council being of the opinion that the estimated cost of a new bear-pit is too high for the city to assume.

"The Manitoba government is having similar difficulties with these animals, a Winnipeg press dispatch stating that the government was considering the advisability of releasing five bears in the zoo in that city owing to the high cost of keeping them. The Winnipeg bears would likely be turned back to the wilds whence they came, the dispatch states.

Mixed Feelings In City At Action Of Hon. H. H. Stevens

Formation of New Political Party at Ottawa Creates Sensation in Local Political Circles.

Formation of a new political party with Hon. H. H. Stevens, former minister of trade and commerce, and mainspring of the far-reaching price spreads investigation at Ottawa, as leader, created a sensation in local political circles on Monday. The news, which spread like wild-fire, was the main interest in political circles on Monday.

On street corners, in hotel lobbies, in restaurants and in every place where people congregated, there was but one topic of conversation, namely, the new party and its effect on the coming Dominion general election.

At the legislative buildings the provincial cabinet was in session, with Premier R. G. Reid presiding, and the U.F.A. cannot escape that responsibility."

Jack Marshall, Liberal candidate in the provincial campaign:

"Apparently Mr. Stevens, like everyone else in Canada, is dissatisfied with the Bennett regime. However, this is not a good reason for dividing the forces opposed to the Bennett government.

"The people of Canada must take an educated stand and place in power a strong government under the leadership of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, who is already pledged to all the reforms promised by Mr. Stevens and who is in opposition to the Bennett policies is only to give them a better chance of continuance.

Remarking that he was not surprised at Hon. H. H. Stevens' decision to form a new party in the face of mismanagement by the Conservative Party and following his startling disclosures in the house during probe, Mayor J. A. Clarke declared Monday that by this new political move they'll be able to split up the government's opposition to give the Tories a chance to squeeze in again.

Mr. Stevens was the "only real Conservative" in the federal party, he maintained, and he had stepped out of line because he was disgusted with the unfair practices condoned by the present party powers.

"I'd like to wait for more details and also the true principles of the new party before I say anything more about it," Mayor Clarke said.

James A. MacKinnon, Liberal candidate for West Edmonton federal constituency:

"A Tory family fight of little interest to West Edmonton, Canada wants staple, settled government, and believes that Mr. Stevens, if broken, obstructions in trade channels removed, trade in kind with Russia and new development will be tackled with a definite, radical program.

H. R. Milner, K.C., president of Alberta Conservative Association also declined to comment on the situation pending developments.

Other Edmonton citizens commented as follows:

Ex-Alderman Herbert Baker: "I have upheld Mr. Stevens in his actions the past year and shall continue to be strongly behind him in his new party should he, as leader, draw up a platform in accordance with his statements following the split with the old party. Everything Mr. Stevens has done has been a step in the right direction. I am keen right with him from the beginning and judging by the newspaper headlines announcing the new party 'Wresting Economic Power From Exploitation,' 'Social Worker Exploitation,' 'Opportunity for Youth' and the battle for the Forgotten Man, Mr. Stevens' actions are parallel with his words."

Elmer E. Roper, labor leader and former candidate for Edmonton said: "I doubt very much if Mr. Stevens will get very far. I think the people are sick of the continual bickering that all he and his party could give them in curbing predatory influence would be done by the C.C.F. and then some. Furthermore, Mr. Stevens made it clear that he believes to retain the present economic system of which the abuses he complains of are an integral part."

Dr. Dudley Rainer, "Mayor" of Grierson Dump shacktown:—"Mr. Stevens and his new party have what it takes to become the great reformers. Mrs. Stevens himself, according to what I have gathered from the newspapers and magazines, has the zeal and fire of a red-hot Social Credit supporter, the caution of a Conservative, the burning wish for reform of the Liberal, the C.C.F. man's eagerness to remedy social inhumanitarianism of a Salvation Army worker and a good, old, common sense of a successful businessman. It is a perfect combination and one I predict since we break with the St. James street Conservatives, the Bennett-bullied Tories, the deserves the support of all classes."

George H. Van Allen, K.C., Liberal candidate for the provincial legislature:—"In the first place, no party can afford to step into the Liberalism sweeping across Canada. The big issues are free-er trade relations, monetary reconstruction, neither of which have been mentioned by Hon. Mr. Stevens."

James H. Ogilvie, Conservative candidate for the House of Commons: "I have many ideas of my own but they are not for publication—yet. I am going out of town today and may or may not let you know what I think of Mr. Stevens and his new party."

Charles Gould, office manager of the Edmonton Social Credit organization: "Mr. Stevens has philanthropic ideas, good intentions, and, if he models his platform on a Social Credit basis, has every good chance of success. We need changes both in Edmonton and Ottawa. Social Credit is the only change possible. After Social Credit nothing else matters."

Charles Anderson, president of the St. Paul Social Credit organization: "I have nothing but Social Credit and its wonderful mission on my mind. I have no opinion on Mr. Stevens. Mr. Bennett, Mr. King or anyone else. Social Credit is all that matters to the country."

Harold O'Connor, Liberal candidate for Edmonton in the provincial campaign: "I do not want to interfere in a private Conservative quarrel, but I am opposed to any new party, since the Liberal party will make all the necessary reforms.

"The Social Credit party is in Alberta today as a direct result of the U.F.A. and the Conservative and the U.F.A. cannot escape that responsibility."

Jack Marshall, Liberal candidate in the provincial campaign:

"Apparently Mr. Stevens, like everyone else in Canada, is dissatisfied with the Bennett regime. However, this is not a good reason for dividing the forces opposed to the Bennett government.

Man Breezes Down Street a la Nude

Oh, he runs down the street with the greatest of ease.

This daring young man, just as bare as you please.

His movements are graceful but he's naked as a jay,

And mosquitoes are on the rampage.

This was the theme of a complaint phoned to city police from the vicinity of 142 street and 97 avenue, when a naked man was seen running down the street Sunday night. "And this is not the first time," an angry voice stated over the wire. Police are making big efforts to apprehend the offender.

Birds' Nests, Wheezes Spoil Overseas Call While Sinclair Sweats

Counts to Thirty, Answers Literary Questions, To Test His Voice

By GORDON SINCLAIR
Bulletin's Roaming Reporter

KARACHI, India, July 8.—The hotel had 65 rooms and one telephone, which is 40 rooms and one telephone more than most Indian hotels.

The telephone was in a little box in a lobby filled with pictures of ships. I'd been using it a lot, trying to find out why a man who has been an earth-quake couldn't tell his people back home all about it.

Gordon Sinclair

Now I was talking to S. E. O. Austin of Oakwood Ave., Toronto. (You can never get away from Toronto guys; you meet them all over the world), when a sort of desk-cramp manager came pattering along and said I was wanted on the telephone.

I knew just what that meant. The telegraph office was going to report for the 55th time that I could send no cables. "It's from America." the man said, wide-eyed with wonder.

"America?" "Yes, sahib; from America. You must hurry."

I jumped up and hurried through the blazing desert sun to the lobby. You never go down corridors in an Indian hotel. You go out into the rain or the sun or the star-spangled night.

The manager looked at me with wonder and respect. "There is a call from America," he said.

I picked up the 'phone. "Is that Mr. Sinclair?" "Yes."

"We have two telephone calls for you . . overseas calls . . one from Canada, one from London. Are you there." "Of course I'm here."

"That's fine . . do you hear me well?" "Quite well."

"Will you please count to 30." I counted to 30 while the hotel servants gathered around and stared.

"That is good. I hear you. Now will you come to the telephone office. It is urgent. You should hurry. We are just connecting the lines through Turkey."

TOO HOT FOR TAXIS

The man hung up. I wondered where the telephone office was, and I wondered a lot more things; but I didn't wait. I dashed out to grab a taxi. There were no taxis. It was three in the afternoon; temperature 111 and dripping with humidity. The taxigirls were asleep.

But there was a horse. A trained horse. The horse came pulling a big black cart; I got in the cart and the horse dashed away like Dan Patch or maybe Man o' War. Then instant he turned the bend from the hotel, the horse stopped down to a walk, and no amount of whipping or cursing could get him up again.

Then the driver took me to the cable office. I'd gone there in cabs so often that the boys all knew me. It was the cabs who went to the cable office and called everybody's names six or eight times a day. I must be important because I even called the superintendent names.

"No, no, no," I exploded now "I want the telephone office. Telephone, not telegraph . . . do you understand?"

He said yes, and turned his horse around. We got stalled among camels smelling like camels smell. We wandered up an alleyway into a compound full of old iron poles and spools of wire. The driver waved at some steps. I went up. It was the telephone company, all right, and the man inside was a regular first-rate Indian official, because he had never heard of me, never heard of Canada, never heard of overseas calls. He was sipping tea. His feet were on a small table.

"But I was told to come here . . there was a call from Canada." He looked up the telephone on his desk, chatted for a bit about this and that, said yes, there was a call from Canada, and I could take it in the sound-proof booth.

EVERYBODY STARES

That sounded better, and I thought we were getting somewhere. A man with his shirt-tail out took me down one flight of steps and up another.

Then I wandered in and around a lot of wires in different colors, and came out among 12 switchboard girls who stared at me. All the girls were different colors, like the wires. One was white, one very black. The others were half-and-halfers; all in between. They all stared at me.

The manager was a thin fellow. He didn't know why I was there. The guide who had brought me didn't know either, so I started all over telling them I was expecting a call from Canada.

All the girls turned and stared at once, and the manager grinned as if to say, "poor fellow—he's probably a refugee from the 'quake zone . . . or maybe the heat's got him."

But he asked some questions on one end of the room and said, sure enough, there was a call from Canada, and I could take it in the sound-proof booth. They led me back downstairs to a side alley; and there, surrounded by stray earthen jugs and camels, was a booth. It looked like one of those stage coffins you see in a magic show.

A 40-MINUTE DELAY

"Is this the sound-proof booth?" The man said yes, so I stepped in Something hit me on the head. It was a bird nest. I looked up, and another bird nest hit me in the face. Bird dirt got in my eyes. A man was just tearing the roof out of the sound-proof booth, from above. A lot of shavings fell down and sprinkled me. Then some nails

"Is this the booth you have?" "Yes," the man said. "I'll stop the work."

"No," I said, "you tell the office to switch the call back to the hotel. I won't be hit by any bird's nests in the hotel."

The horse went back pretty fast As he came in sight of the hotel, he broke into a gallop. He was a trick horse.

This all took 40 minutes, but we hadn't yet got through Turkey. A man asked me to count to 30 again I did that four times. Each time a man said he was hearing me great. One man was in Delhi, one in Lahore and one in Poona, 1,200 miles south.

DISCUSSES WEATHER

Then they said would I talk to London. A girl asked if I was there and I turned on the mike to see who was she. She said she was London. Then a man came on and told me about the weather in London. I didn't hear much of what he said, but I knew it was about the weather.

"How's the weather in India" he asked. "It's very hot. It is getting hotter."

His answer was a lot of burps, bubbles and hisses. I'd been all ready to worship at the shrine of science, but things began to go blooey. Then Wheeler, manager of the syndicate which distributes my yarns came on the 'phone.

"That you, Gord?" "Sure, what's left of me."

"How are you?" "Tired, Tom . . . but I get some swell stories and . . ."

"This is Poona, a man broke in. London says they can't hear you."

I sat and sweated while people in middle Europe jabbered to each other. I got occasional flashes in Italian, scraps of German. I heard vagrant wisps of distant English. A funeral went by in the hotel. It was a sad, noisy funeral. The funeral of people who died from earthquake wounds. I wished Tom could have heard the funeral, because it was a good glimpse of India.

MORE COUNTING TO 30

But all I heard in the next hour was a man in Poona and another in Lahore asking me to count to 30. I counted and sweated, then counted some more.

At last a precise, rather pleased-voiced man came on the wire and demanded: "I say, did you ever read Treasure Island." "Sure I read it."

"That's right . . . now who wrote Treasure Island?" "Robert Louis Stevenson."

"That's fine," the man said, "well, what are we doing, playing games?" "No," the man said, "I'm in London . . . I'm getting the sound waves on your voice. Here is Mr. Wheeler."

But there was no Mr. Wheeler. There was just burps and wheezes and grunts. It sounded like somebody boiling the laundry. At last the Treasure Island man came back and said he was licked. The weather was against him. It just ended like that. Nobody said good by or anything. My first, last and only night in London. I went out and washed the bird nests off my neck.

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel MacElliott.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KATHARINE STRYKHURST, the daughter of Wallace VICTON STRYKHURST, is deeply attracted by MICHAEL HEATHEROE, who runs a riding school. Katharine is disconcerted and jealous under her stepmother's rule. Thrown from a horse, she is taken to the home of VIOLET MERSER, who once was in love with Katharine's father. Violet is drawn to the girl and they become friends.

DR. JOHN KAYE, just back from Europe, visits the Strykhursts.

JOE PARKER, Katharine's closest friend, is in love with GIBBS LARKIN, and perishs in seeing him in spite of her parents' objections. Katharine asks Dr. Kaye to help her keep Zoe from eloping with Gibbs. They take Zoe on a motor coach where she sees Gibbs with a notorious woman. She threatens to do away with herself.

The same night Michael is involved into taking SALLY MOON to the same place.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVII

"LOOK," Sally coaxed brightly, "if you come along with me to the Club for a bit probably Father will be home by the time we get back. Then you can see him and talk to him . . ."

"I don't like to drop in on a place of that sort," Michael Heatheroe argued.

"All right." Michael said grudgingly. "But I'm against it, don't forget that."

"You're a lamb." She laid a flirting, warm hand on his sleeve. "I'll do something for you some time. Besides, Father will be pleased. He said you were such a sterling young man. Honestly, that was what he said."

Thanks," said Michael, getting red and feeling a fool. But it was all right if Sally and Dad thought so him when there was no one else to hear. She was, really, a sweet little thing. He said the first thing that came into her head.

So it was that, as Katherine's self turned over in the comfort of the Bath Club, Sally's drove in.

Michael saw Katharine. He caught a glimpse of Dr. Kaye beside her, his thin, aristocratic face sharply cut above the black and white of his dinner clothes.

Sally, driving rather intently, did not see them. "Here we are," she cried gaily, jumping out. "Michael, we'll let the man park it, shall we? I don't know exactly where . . ."

But the doorman was not in sight. A waiter, looking rather wild-eyed, ran to the door, inspected them and ran back again.

"Isn't he queer?" Sally marvelled.

Michael pushed open the big gilded door and went in. The marble-floored hall was empty. A hat check girl appeared from nowhere She, too, looked rather disheveled. She viewed the newcomers with something like suspicion.

"Will anyone find me a table, please?" Sally demanded with hauteur. "Miss Moon"

There was a doorman, after all. He came on the run.

"What goes on here, anyhow?" Sally wanted to know.

The doorman looked blank. It was, she knew, one of the best things doormen did. But Sally was curious. There was about the place a curious air of tenseness. The few groups of people at the tables aroused the pool, to which they were presently escorted, seemed excited about something. The captain of waiters eyed Michael with suspicion, but purred when he heard Sally's name. It was well, the employees of the Bath Club had learned, to stand in well with the local fathers. Joseph Moon was a prominent local father. He ran the Moon Trust Co., a village school trustee; he bossed the school board.

"This isn't so much," observed Sally in a dissatisfied tone, Michael grinned.

What did you expect? People hanging from the walls?"

She giggled "I thought it would be—more exciting."

"Oh well, it's early for this kind of place," Michael told her. "Most of the people who come here are still catching a little shut-eye. It won't wake up, really, till midnight . . ."

"Michael!" burst Sally. "How do you know all these things? I mean you're from the woolly west and all that, and yet sometimes you talk so—so like a man of the world."

His eyes darkened subtly. "Oh, I've been around."

"You're a man of mystery," cried Sally, widening her eyes. "That's what you are. I know you ran a ranch—cattle ranch, wasn't it?—out in Montana. Your partner cheated you and you came down here with what was left . . . Father told me that."

"Oh, he did?" murmured Michael. "You know a lot, don't you?"

"Don't be stuffy," pouted the girl. "I like you. You're a grand person. Why won't you tell me all about yourself?"

"There's nothing to tell," persisted Michael. Red had crept up into his face.

"You're not just an ordinary—well, cowboy," said Sally thoughtfully.

"Thanks." The little laughter lines showed now, around the corners of his eyes.

A waiter, hovered at Sally's elbow. A sleek, oily, fox-faced waiter with a cast in one eye.

"Oh, I'll have a Martini, waiter," Sally said airily. "Bring some canapes with it. Caviar and anchovy paste and things like that. And have you got some of those little sausages?"

The waiter said yes, they had some of the little sausages

Then that's Sally," nodded "Oh, Michael, I forgot—what are you going to have?"

I'll take ginger ale — plain," Michael said dryly.

"Oh, you big stick! You'll have a Martini with me and like it." pouted Sally, tossing her head and making her opaque brown eyes very large and winning.

"No, thanks."

Spoil-sport!"

"I'm sorry," said Michael very quietly

She caught at his hand.

"Oh, now don't be a donkey. I was only teasing. You mustn't mind me. I'm just crazy about everybody knows that," cried Sally, warming to her subject. "I'm just a kid—I guess I'll never grow up. I reckon maybe not," he drawled.

She clapped her hands and one of two people at adjacent tables turned to stare at her in some curiosity. A pretty girl with big eyes and a rounded figure in a pink lace frock.

Michael, when you say that you sound exactly like Gary Cooper. That's the way they all talk out in God's country, isn't it? Oh, I adore the west. I've always said I'd love to live there some day. It's my dream—my ideal."

She was enjoying the little stir she had made, enjoying the glances of the curious. Maybe that fat man in the linen suit was a theatrical producer, looking for "types." Maybe he would notice her verve and animation and send a note over to their table, asking her if she had ever thought of going on the stage. She had heard that the Blue Sky Club was absolutely dripping with celebrities, but nobody there looked particularly famous.

"Who's that girl over there by the door?" she demanded of Michael suddenly. "She was talking to the captain, I've seen her picture some place."

Michael turned and glanced at the newcomer. She was a tall girl with a sinuous, beautiful body draped in transparent black. Her magnificent bosom was bare and there were glittering bangles on both her arms. Her black hair grew in a widow's leak on her white forehead.

"She's a stunner," Michael conceded, after a brief survey.

"Yes, but who is she?" Sally repeated. "Oh, I'll have her name in a minute—I'll ask the captain. I'm vague, I saw her in that show last winter."

The drinks and dainty little tidbits of toast and fish paste were set down before them. Sally took a bite of caviar with a child's greediness and sipped the burning liquid

"Good," she murmured. "You don't know what you're missing."

Her color mounted and her tongue tripped along to a merrier tune. Michael, with a possessive attitude toward the man at her side. Her glances were frankly amorous now and her interest in him more boldly displayed.

"I must have another cocktail Michael. One's only the starter, you know. Really just a sip."

The tall young man in the gray suit frowned to himself. It was a disagreeably uncomfortable position to be in. Sally was behaving in a guest did not protest at the conduct of his hostess.

Sally had her second cocktail

"Do you mind if we push along?" Michael asked rather awkwardly. "I have to get back to the ranch."

The place was filling up. The girl in black had stood in the doorway only a moment, her eyes raking the crowd. Then she hac vanished.

"All right," Sally said. "Well, go! But I do think you're being very stuffy. Michael darling."

When they arrived at her front door Joseph Moon was just rising from the swinging couch on the veranda.

"Ah, Heatheroe, Sally said you wanted to see me." He stared with some surprise and distaste at his daughter, who was swaying oddly on her feet.

"Sally, what on earth does this mean?" His eye darted to her escort's dark, troubled face.

"It's perfectly all right, Father," Sally said, very carefully. "You see Michael and I are going to be married."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

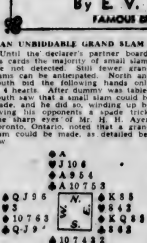

WRITTEN FOR THE BULLETIN

By E. V. SHEPARD

FAMOUS BRIDGE TEACHER

AN UNBIDDABLE GRAND SLAM

Until the declarer's partner boards his cards how majority of small slams are not detected. Still fewer grand slams can be anticipated. North and South both following hands only to 4 hearts. After dummy was tabled South saw that a small slam could be made, and he did so, winding up by giving his opponents a spade trick The sharp eyes of Mr. H. H. Ayer Toronto, Ontario, noted at a grand slam could be made, as detailed below.

While an same players would attempt to bid a grand slam, the following bidding might result in a small slam contract, without too great risk North, 1 club; South, 2 hearts, to show slam hopes; North, 3 diamonds; South, 3 spades, to again force; North, 5 hearts; South, 6 hearts

To cut down cross-trutting the 3 rd hearts appears to be the natural lead Win the trick with dummy's 10 Lead dummy's lone spade. Enter South's opening lead hand with the lone king of clubs Ruff a return lead of spades with dummy's 8. Ruff a low club by with declarer's 7. Use dummy's last trump to ruff a spade, making the sixth trick. Lead and ruff a low club from dummy. The ruff leaves the A-10 of clubs established in dummy. Pull opposing trumps for the eighth and ninth tricks. Lead declarer's only diamond and win with the ace. Upon dummy's two diamonds declarer's two remaining spades. For the thirteenth trick ruff dummy's last diamond with declarer's last trump.

Suppose the grand slam is made instead of a trump Dummy's ace will win the first trick. Dummy can ruff three spade leads, establishing the fifth spade. Then proceed with the making his grand slam easier of accomplishment.

In case the opening lead is a diamond, unblock the ace and play a spade, win with the ace Dummy will have the three trumps for ruffing spades and establishing the 10 of that suit in the dummy. Then the grand slam may be made with greater facility than against the opening trump lead.

Last of all, consider an opening lead of a club. Win with South's king Lead a spade South will ruff a low spade. Dummy will ruff a spade Declarer can now establish a spade in his own hand, as he could with an opening spade or diamond lead, or he can establish clubs as he did with an opening trump lead. Of all opening leads the club will make things simplest and the trump lead the most difficult for the declarer, but the grand slam may be made against any of them.

The accident occurred when the ship was 130 miles out on Lake Huron. Dodged head came in contact with some sharp object, thought to be a faucet, when he fell. He suffered a deep cut. In the 15 hours before the boat docked ships officers, led by Captain A. Chesney, made frantic efforts to stem the flow of blood.

FARMER-LABOR SETS $2,500 FOR FAMILIES

New Third Party Also Fights for New Economic Order

OMAHA, Neb., July 8—An annual income of $2,500 for every United States family will be demanded in the platform of the National Farmer-Labor party, Roy M. Harrop, its chairman, predicted on Sunday. The convention of the party opens today

"All present redistribution of wealth programs don't go far enough," said Harrop. "The plan which will be proposed at this convention will make money the servant and not the master of mankind.

"We propose to raise the American standard of living from its present condition of poverty to a point where every American family will be guaranteed a return of at least $2,500 a year."

Third Party Has 13-Plank Platform

CHICAGO, July 8—The American Commonwealth Political Federation Sunday was charged with the task of completing the structure of a "third party" dedicated to a fight for a "new economic order" on the national political battlefront.

Organized Saturday at the closing session of a two-day conference of self-proclaimed "Liberals," the Federation adopted a 13-point "platform" stressing "production for use," as opposed to production for profit. It demanded also a sharing of the general wealth.

Rep. Thomas R. Amlie, Wisconsin Progressive, named chairman of the Federation at the meeting, protesting a new party movement was "premature," declared today there was strong demand "between the Alleghanies and the Rockies" for a "new social order."

HAY FREE ON $17,500 BAIL

WETASKIWIN, July 8.— Bruce Hay, manager of the Big Beech Land Co., of Spokane, Wash., and son of a former governor of Washington, now deceased, was remanded for trial on a charge of manslaughter in Magistrate A. E. Simpson, Saturday.

Hay was given preliminary hearing following the death of Mrs. Ethel Mona Taylor of Calgary, whose car was crushed under Hay's car when it turned over in a ditch two miles north of here, following a collision on Saturday with a car driven by Mrs. R. Lindsay of Wetaskiwin, early on June 19.

There was conflicting evidence at the trial as to whether the car was driven by Hay, who admitted intoxication, or by Jack Shaw of Innisfail, who said he jumped from the car before the accident. The weight of evidence was that Hay was the driver. Bail was set at Hay's own recognizance of $7,500 and two sureties of $5,000 each.

ABANDONMENT OF TRACKAGE IS PROTESTED

J. S. Cowper, Liberal Candidate, Pleads for Coal Branch Welfare

Claiming that a reduction of the present high rate on domestic coal of $5 20 a ton from Lovett to Winnipeg, or an increase in the Dominion subvention, would enable the Lovett mines to operate once more with employment for nearly a thousand men, J S. Cowper, Liberal candidate for Edson, went before the Dominion Railway Commission on Saturday morning and opposed an application by the Canadian National Railways to abandon 4.6 miles of track from Foothills to Lovett on the Alberta Coal Branch.

After argument between counsel for the C.N.R. and the Liberal candidate, the chairman announced that the board would reserve its decision on the railway company's application.

OPERATED AT LOSS

For the railway it was urged that this once-thriving district now has only about one hundred residents left, engaged in hunting and trapping, and that for the past four years the company has operated the service at a loss. Counsel quoted the many reorganizations that have taken place in the last fifteen years in the three mines in the district, all of which are now closed down. He said that it will cost $36,000 to repair the six bridges and 36 culverts on the section unless this portion is soon abandoned.

In speaking on behalf of Mr. R. Babich and the 52 voters in the district, Mr. Cowper said that the traffic returns filed by the company failed to take into account the 30,000 ties shipped out in 1934 and 18,000 ties shipped out in 1935. The policy of the Forest Branch, he said, had resulted in ensuring consecutive supplies of tie and board timber, so that Forest Officer H. Cochrane had estimated 200,000,000 feet of board timber, equal to 500,000 ties within a ten-mile radius of Lovett.

CONTINUOUS OPERATION

"The statement in regard to the mines, filed by counsel for the railway," argued Mr. Cowper, "shows that despite reorganizations, the Blackstone mine had been in almost continuous operation from 1909 till 1932, and the Brookdale mine from 1920 to 1932. These reorganizations indicate that at present freight rates the margin between profit and loss is not a wide one. The rate is $5.20 a ton for shipping domestic coal to the Winnipeg market, a thousand miles away. A movement is on foot in the province to have the government make application for a reduced rate on coal. With a rate so high as $5.20 for one thousand miles there would be room for a sufficient reduction to be made to permit the mines to operate at a profit, or in the alternative an application might be made for an addition to the Dominion subvention to allow these mines to operate again.

"There is a large amount of coal contiguous to the railway and it would be a retrograde move to tear up these lines while there is yet hope for the coal mines at Lovett to resume operation at a profit," said Mr. Cowper, who pointed out that the line from Coalspur to Foothills was highly profitable to the railway, having moved over 3,000,000 tons from Miles 47 and 48 within the past fifteen years. To make the order he said, would mean that 28 families at Lovett, owning their own homes and having no highway facilities, would have to vacate their homes, without any means to re-establish themselves elsewhere.

ACTION PREMATURE

"I submit on behalf of these people who are unable to afford to retain legal counsel," said Mr. Cowper "that it is premature to make any order for the abandonment of these 4.6 miles of track until opportunity is provided for the operators and the provincial government to make application for a reduction of the present coal rate, and until an opportunity is given to secure highway facilities into the district."

Gold Prospecting On Saskatchewan

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, July 8.—Gold prospecting has started again this year, and a number of men are working on the banks of the Saskatchewan and its tributaries. Two Edmonton men built a boat at the river here and started back for the city, planning on taking the summer for the trip and prospecting all likely looking gravel bars and creeks.

There has been considerable sale and leasing of Hudson Bay land in the Bingley district, a special agent of the company spent a few weeks here for that purpose. H. Nelson and E. Biswanger have leased a half section each.

Celery Duty

OTTAWA, July 8.—Value for duty of celery when imported into the four western provinces is fixed at one cent per pound in advance of the true invoice value in Canadian funds in an order just issued by the department of national revenue. The order is effective from July 5.

Whitney Letter

NEW YORK, July 8—Although again in Saturday's session as was the case Friday there were some market developments which were not entirely to my liking, again there was a preponderance of evidence of more up to the market than down, accordingly I have no hesitancy or reluctance in advocating the purchase of any or all of the issues suggested Friday to those enumerated below. Personally I expect a very good market this week, particularly in the early part of the week. To be very candid with you I think the next five points up in the industrial averages are going to be brought about rather speedily. It is true that the rails failed to move as I thought they would move Saturday. I look for the strength in the industrials to continue and to prove contagious and bring about a mark-up in the rails which in turn will supplement to a material extent the already discernible strength in the industrials. The utilities appear to be jockeying for position and with a move up in the rails I look for them to hop on the band wagon. As I see it, the market has started to discount in advance and in earnest, the improvement in business, confidentially anticipated this fall and which I believe will be quite evident to all by the close of this month. In addition, it appears a virtual certainty that in the near term future there will be innumerable favorable quartely profit reports for the second quarter of the year and that for quite a few of the more prominent issues there will be increased or extra dividends announced. The stage is set for a good-sized rallying movement. Would not be a bit surprised if developments in Washington soon indicate a definite postponement of much of the distasteful legislation proposed by the administration and an earlier than expected adjournment of congress.

JULY FUTURE REMAINS AT PEGGED LEVEL

WINNIPEG, July 8.—While July remained at its "peg" the August option advanced fractionally on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Wheat prices closed unchanged to ¼ cent higher, July at 80 and August 80¼ cents.

A "natural reaction" in outside markets from the past few days of precipitous declines encouraged modest buying here that at one period sent the August future up a half-cent. Trading, however, generally was quiet.

Liverpool closed ⅜d to 1½d higher, and Chicago at one time was more than 1½ cents advanced. Buenos Aires also firmed, up ⅜-⅝ cent at noon.

STOCKS' CLOSING TONE IS FIRM

NEW YORK, July 8—Steady buying of steels, tobaccos, industrial specialties, mail order and farm implement issues gave today's stock market a decidedly bullish appearance. All groups did not participate in the forward push, but the closing tone was firm. Transfers approximated 1,200,000 shares

PATS and PANS by BILL LEWIS

Many baseball fans, some disappointed in the turn baseball took this spring and well into the summer months, were skeptical when Webster King, the John McGraw of local sandlots, boomed forth the statement around these parts he would have a winning club . . . Today many of these fans are in accord with King—he has a winning club—and one which received an enthusiastic okay from every direction. . . .

Webb King, I remind you, is the big boss of the new Shasta-Royals . . . The team, led by big Herman Loblick on Sunday gave the finest performance seen at Renfrew Park this season . . .

It was a perfect day for the Shasta-Royals in every respect . . . A no-hit, no-run mound performance by Loblick and an errorless game by the fielding staff made the day perfect and the 7-0 triumph rounded out a fine fixture for the hometeers . . . Should the Shasta-Royals continue to play as they did on Sunday, and there is no visible reason why they shouldn't, then the teams they play exhibition games with had better get set for serious sandlot warfare . . .

On Tuesday evening, at Renfrew Park, the real test for Shasta-Royals will be given—the team that handed the Panthers their first defeat of the season—the same team that whipped Clint Hodges' Edmonton Bushers last week . . .

Edmonton Bushers will not be in uniform at Diamond Park again this season . . . There was a deal pulled between the Senior Baseball League and the Busher management that Hodges sell out and it was satisfactory to all parties concerned . . . This, then, means that Shasta-Royals will probably take the Bushers' place in the Northern League, and will be playing their games against the remaining three teams: namely Wetaskiwin, Ponoka and Mirror . . .

It looks like the only solution to the ruffled baseball problem . . . The games will all be played at Renfrew Park—and, with an increased number of fans attending, it may be the rpark of interest and enthusiasm which will bring around the long-hoped-for baseball revival . . .

It was noticeable also yesterday that the greater majority of the Bushers had changed their livery for one of the Shasta-Royals . . . There was also new players from last years' teams that is, new players for this season . . . One of the main catching stars, Cliff Robinson is back in the game . . . Big Herm Loblick's signing is also a bright feature and of course there was Phil Horn out. A leading outfielder, also infielder men like Bud Williamson, Pep Moon, Dave Fenton and Joe Shandro . . . Reynolds and Stewart are other outfielders, while Albert 'Silver' Smith was the coaching lizes . . .

The annual city tennis tournament got away to a great start over the weekend, with only one upset on the program . . . This came when Shorty Farrell eliminated one of the seeded players of the meet—Roger Waters . . . Except for this upset, all of those who were seeded advanced successfully . . . From the competition so far, there is every indication of some great matches yet to come before the tournament concludes.

The event they call baseball's "Dream Game," the annual meeting of squads chosen from the National and American leagues, takes place in Cleveland today and it will attract continent-wide attention . . . It would be hard to compute the total value of the galaxy of stars that will be seen on both clubs but you could certainly retire to a life of ease if you had a fraction of the sum . . .

A crowd of 32,000 is expected to pay over $100,000 to view the contest . . . This money is all put into a fund to aid old ball players who are in need.

BUSHERS OUT, SHASTA CLUB TO CONTINUE

Newly-formed Ball Squad To Carry on Baseball Rest of Season

Edmonton Bushers, this city's representatives in the Northern Baseball League, passed out of existence as a result of a deal concluded Saturday between Clint Hodges and Edmonton Senior League officials.

Not having enjoyed as great success as hoped for with the team, Hodges was willing to give up his interests in the club and was able to make a satisfactory deal with the senior circuit to take over his Northern Loop franchise and his equipment.

Bushers' exhibition game with Wainwright carded for Sunday, was called off when this arrangement was made and, instead, Wainwright played Shasta-Royals, the newly-organized Senior League squad.

Webb King, who is at the helm of the Royals, saw his aggregation get off to a good start with a 7-0 win yesterday and plans to strengthen even further.

The new team will play all its games in the Senior League's Renfrew Park and is to have many exhibition contests in addition to the regular Northern League fixtures.

YANK BOXLA SQUAD WINS AT CALGARY

All-American Lacrosse Team Takes Battle By 18-6 Score

CALGARY, July 8.—Box lacrosse fens of Calgary were convinced today of the ability of the United States All-American Intercollegiate team to adapt itself to the seven-man game and had an answer to their question of how an all-star team from the south would perform against crack opponents.

Strangers to the boxla variety which has dominated the Lally Trophy to Vancouver all-stars recently by losing three straight games, the American college boys overwhelmed a calgary all-star outfit 18-6 here Saturday, their third consecutive victory since they let the coast.

LEADS ATTACK

With the elusive Pete Robins from Syracuse University as the spearhead of their attack, the visitors rattled tricky shots at the Calgary goal to gain an early lead, and the result was never in doubt.

The Canadians seemed disorganized against the winners' swift, precise onslaught.

At the end of the first quarter, the United States' representatives were leading 5-2 and had an 11-3 advantage by half time. While holding Calgary scoreless in the third, the Americans counted five times.

With victory almost certain, the visitors relaxed in the last period and found the goal range twice as Calgarians fighting hard to push more balance in the score, fooled Arthur Johnson, 310-pound American goalie, three times.

GETS SEVEN GOALS

Robins, tiny forward, notched seven counters for the winners, most of them on flashy line rushes through the Calgary defence. Hamnan added four goals while Truxton, England and Donahue were getting two each. Swindell scored one.

For Calgary Sammy Kirkpatrick and Sammy Curliss were credited with two goals each and Jimmy Gilkes and George Dodds one each.

Martin Triumphs In Quebec Tennis

MONTREAL, July 8. — Lawyer Walter Martin, big Toronto tennis star, settled his claim to the Quebec provincial men's singles tennis title on McGill University courts here Saturday afternoon when he defeated Ross Wilson, hard hitting Canadian ranked player also of Toronto, in a four set duel. The scores were 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, 9-7.

Wilson gained some consolation in winning the doubles, paired with Grant (Pinky) McLean, of Toronto. The Toronto team pulled out a four-set win, 6-3, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2, over a Montreal combination of Henri Paul

Enters Hall Of Baseball Fame Sunday

HERMAN LOBLICK

Big hight-hander of the new Shasta-Royals, who achieved the distinction of all baseball pitchers at Renfrew Park Sunday when he hurled a perfect no-hit, no-run game against Wainwright, to win by 7-0. Herman was in great form and the visitors could do nothing with his offerings.

MAX SCHMELING WHIPS UZCUDUN

BERLIN, July 8.—Max Schmeling trounced Paulino Uzcudun of Spain in a 12-round fight last night, winning on points before a crowd of 65,000, including many high Nazi officials.

The former world's heavyweight champion disappointed the crowd which expected him to win more decisively than he did.

Schmeling, who weighed 192½, found a tough game adversary in the wood-chopping Basque, who took everything the German had to offer on the way of long-range punching while wading in to register short, powerful body blows.

Schoolboy Cricket Team Of Dominion Impressive Eleven

COBHAM, Surrey, July 8.—Canada's touring schoolboy cricketers made an impressive showing yesterday in their first match on English soil, scoring 167 runs for six wickets against Downside College. The English team had been drawn to enable the Canadians to leave for Winchester where they are slated to play their second match on Monday.

Fort Rouge Rangers Win Soccer Clash

WINNIPEG, July 8.—Fort Rouge Rangers today were in the final cricket of play for the Manitoba soccer championship. Defeat of St. John's by a score of 2-0 here, Saturday, advanced the red shirts to the provincial playdown against either Elmwood United or Weston, last year's titlist, for the right to continue in the Dominion playdowns.

Perfect Hurling Exhibition Beats Wainwright Squad

New Shasta-Royals Take Their First Start Sunday By 7-0 Margin In Pleasing Display at Renfrew.

By JACK DEAKIN

Webb King's new - born Shasta-Royals had a perfect day down at Renfrew Park Sunday afternoon against Wainwright, with Herman Loblick, tall right hander from Spruce Grove in the leading role with a perfect no-hit, no-run game, and a winning margin of 7-0 to his credit. The game was the first of an exhibition series Shasta-Royals will play.

It was a perfect day for several of King's men. The Spruce Grove "giraffe" was the "hottest," allowing only two batters to reach first base, one on balls and the other being struck by a pitched ball.

But Herman does not take all the orchids. Joe Shandro, at short stop, and Cliff Robinson, backstop, were equally as brilliant as Loblick, while the remaining Royal mates did nothing wrong for an errorless game.

IS GREAT START

Sunday's perfect performance was a pleasing debut for the newly-formed nine and if yesterday's game was any indication they will be giving the Davis strengthened Wetaskiwin crew a stiff battle here Tuesday evening at Renfrew Park.

The locals had Wainwright under control at every stage of the game. Only once in every nine was the pathways during the nine innings, the second runner reaching the bases being tagged out on a well-played double putout in the fourth inning.

Topping all performances on the field was that of Joe Shandro at short. Shandro had 11 fielding chances, taking them all, one a hot slip, and saved Loblick's perfect game on a couple of occasions when taking fielding chances which were not easy tasks. Shandro had six putouts and five assists.

Every member of the infield worked smartly. Cliff Robinson put real pep in the squad, and himself played 'Tin can' good behind Bob Williamson, at first base, Pepper Moon at the key sack and Dave Fenton on the hot corner rounded out King's spirited infield. Archie Reynolds, at right, Phil Horne in centre and Jimmy Stewart in left was the trio guarding the outer gardens.

The greatly increased attendance, indicating a revival in baseball at Renfrew Park, had their spirits dampened somewhat when showers set in just at game time. The field, however, did not become too wet, with ground keepers having the park in good shape after each inning. The showers broke up and delayed the game which was played at Renfrew Park this season.

Both teams were retired in rapid order in the first inning and it was in the second stanza that the locals scored their first. Reynolds tallying. He gained first when struck by a pitched ball, stole his way to second and advanced to third base as Stewart hit safely. Joe Shandro started to "go to town" right at the first, he laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt, scoring Reynolds, while Loblick was later tagged out at first to retire the side.

Moon rang up Shasta-Royals' second tally, reaching the initial bag on R. Cofield's error. He advanced to second when the ball was played to first on Fenton and then scored on Williamson's fourth lengths as V. Cofield threw the ball wide of first base. It was a hard break for Paul Sporniti on the Wainwright hillock.

Errors again let Sporniti down in the sixth inning, Robinson and Reynolds, scoring, touching over half the bases on fumbles to Wainwright. There were no hits registered by Royals in that inning.

Shasta-Royals got their only earned runs in the eighth, mainly as a result of Bud Williamson's and Shandro's two baggers. Robinson was passed, got to second as Catcher Sporniti missed a throw, and then scored on Bud's double. Williamson ran home as Shandro belted out his first hit of the game—a double to centrefield—and Loblick polished off a brilliant mound duel with the stick, rapping out a single, and Shandro raced from second to home plate. It concluded the scoring for the Spruce Grove flinger who took no chances of spoiling his perfect game and struck out Wainwright's batters in order.

Paul Sporniti, Wainwright hurler who many will remember, hurled in junior baseball here two years ago, gave Loblick a stiff battle right up until the eighth. Shasta-Royals only got to Sporniti for two hits in the first seven innings, but boosted their total to five with three hits, two of them doubles, in the eighth.

Loblick had nine strikeouts and one passed, while Sporniti had four and one free base on balls. There is no doubt the game would have been closer if Sporniti had been given better suport. Seven errors were made by Wainwright.

SAFEWAY NINE MEETING GRITS JUNIOR CLASH

Play Scheduled Game at Boyle St.—Arrows Win Protest

Jack Bartley's Safeways, badly in need of a triumph if they wish to stay at all close to the league-leading Army & Navy Grits, will clash with the Grit squad tonight in a scheduled game of the Junior Baseball League. The game is scheduled for 6:30 o'clock at Boyle street.

A long pending decision, that upon the Arrow Buses' protest was decided yesterday—in favor of the Arrows—and now Safeways must replay the game at a date to be named by the executive. Coach John Ducey protested on an umpire's decision against batting out of order.

Having to make this replay, the game tonight is one of great importance to the Safeway crew.

Rimbey Stages Fine Sports Meet

RIMBEY, July 8—Rimbey Dominion day sports were a success in every respect. Fine weather and a program of events which provided entertainment for young and old started off at noon when Eckville and Rimbey opened the day with a snappy ball game, which ended in a 7-7 tie.

Foot races, horse races, novelty races, airplane rides, picture shows and the usual big dance in the evening finished off another gala day for Rimbey.

The results of the horse races follow:

3-8 Mile Pony, 14.3 and under—1, Jim Whiteface; 2, Buster Adams; 3, Ronald Iddings.

3-8 Mile, open—1, Buster Adams; 2, Jim Whiteface; 3, Franklin Cooper.

Girls' Softball

In the West section, Bonnie Doon's winning streak was checked when Doughty's Dreadnaughts from Centre flooded to a 12-1 win. Not till the last minute was the deciding run scored. On the evening's other game Eastville re-venged between these two classy aggregations. Smith, Valpy and Walters played a strong game for Scona Centre, while Vaugh and Grossman played stellar roles for the winners.

In the East section, North Edmonton came over to Eastwood and blasted out a 14-11 win. This was a hotly fought game and teams are trying hard to get in on the playoffs. North Edmonton played a strong game throughout, as did the Eagles.

Camrose will invade Wetaskiwin's baseball lot this evening in an exhibition game which will get underway at the usual 6:30 time.

Both teams have proven their rivalry and the invading Camrose club will be more than hopeful of turning back the rampaging nine now coached by the Davis in Wetaskiwin.

CALLIES COP 4-2 TRIUMPH SOCCER TILT

Whip St. Pats In Senior Game Diamond Park On Saturday

Callies copped a 4-2 triumph over St. Pats in a senior soccer clash at Diamond Park on Saturday night. The winning verdict helps the Scots retain their position more firmly behind the league-leading Radials.

The Scots took command from the start and within 15 minutes were two goals up. Pat James getting both counters on smart combination plays. It was seen that St. Pats were playing short handed but eventually got a full team on the field. St. Pats came back strong and kept the Callies defending. Their pressure soon told, Barnes reducing the leeway with a good shot. Before half time the Callies scored again. Pat James netting to complete his hat trick.

The game continued on fast lines neither side claiming advantage. McMillan, of the Callies, was injured in a tackle and had to receive attention from trainer Martin. St. Pats took up the running at this point and Murdoch scored No. two from a penalty, crashing the ball past Dempster. McMillan resumed playing and the Callies took up the offensive and were rewarded with another goal when F. Bennett scored.

Next game, Hearts vs. Royals, Monday night, July 8.

C. Souch, referee.

On Tuesday night at the South Side athletic grounds the Norwood junior will tangle with South Side Juniors in a junior soccer league fixture. Still smarting under the defeat handed them by the Scona team in their last game, the Norwood juniors will be seeking revenge. Both teams are old rivals and will be out fighting for the points at stake. The game is scheduled to get underway at 7:30 sharp and all players are requested to be on the grounds on time.

UPSET FEATURES CITY TENNIS MEET

Empire Beats York In Big Four Clash By Margin of 4-3

Tommy Brant Hurls His Fourth Straight Win And Features Battle At Boyle Street Park.

Tommy Brant, classy young pitcher of the league-leading Empire hotel nine, registered his fourth straight victory in the Big Four Baseball League Sunday afternoon when he tossed his mates to a 4-3 decision over the York Hotel Club in their encounter at Boyle St.

Brant's starry twirling performance was the feature of a well played contest in which both clubs fought on close terms throughout.

Only three of the 32 batsmen to face him managed to get a hold of one of his offerings over the route. "Bud" Cowan touched him for the first hit in the initial inning when he slapped out a two base clout.

GAME UNDER CONTROL

The blow must have made Tommy peeved, for he settled down to hurl no-run, no-hit ball for the next five innings and allowed but one man to reach first. In the seventh he eased up a bit and the Yorkers took advantage of him for two hits and a walk to score three runs, Bunnin and Alderdice being the hitters.

Empires started out strongly when they climbed aboard the offerings of Kenny Ball for three safe hits in the initial inning to score three runs. Bill Green, lead-off man, started the fireworks by singling to centre, Jack Colville flied out to centre and Eddie Ibson worked Ball for a free ticket to first. Tommy Brant then slapped out a single to centre to score Green and Ibson. Hague struckout, but Jim Kelly slapped out a two-base hit to left field to score Brant. Lunde grounded out to retire the side.

GOT WINNING RUN

The winning run was scored in the last of the seventh. Brant gained a walk, stole second and third and romped home when Jim Kelly singled to left field.

All three of the Yorkers' runs were scored in the first half of the seventh. Kenny Ball was issued a walk, went to third on Bunnin's two bagger to right field and came home on Denny Hague's error with a poor peg to the plate. Bunnin also made his way around to home on Hague's misplay. Williams reached first on a fielders choice, advanced to second on a play to the plate and raced home on Alderdice's single to centre.

Tommy Brant and Jim Kelly were the bright spots in the Empire's triumph. Brant, besides turning in a smart twirling performance came through with two hits in two trips to the plate. He also drove in two runs besides scoring the winning tally. Kelly pounded out two hits in three attempts and also drove in two runs. Each registered a two base hit.

MAC BREEZE WINS STAKES AT CALGARY

Three Smart Western Breds Furnish Close Finish

CALGARY, July 8.—Three smart western-bred two-year-olds charged the finishing line together in the Calgary Juvenile Stakes Saturday, with only the palpitating judges able to separate them. It is probable that the honors of the race should go to Pagan Knight, who was fifth entering the short home stretch and only failed to get up in time by inches. All the same Macleod Breeze finished stoutly, for he was in fourth hole at the turn for home and pushed his nose in front just in time.

THREE FURLONGS

The Juvenile Stakes was a three-furlong scurry this year, and from a good start Love Us and Peach Bloom contested the lead with Messenger Maid close to the pair. Rounding into the straight Messenger Maid was hampered and Peach Bloom tired. All of a sudden Macleod Breeze swept up with Pagan Knight alongside and in a hectic finish Love Us was just caught by her stablemate in the last yard. Outside of the quartette mentioned nothing mattered.

Mrs. R. Leavitt collected $450 as the winner's portion and a further $65 second money.

Although there was rain up to noon the afternoon turned out fine and a splendid crowd attended the opening of the summer seven-day meeting. The track was on the slow-heavy side but the racing was as good as has been seen this season. Jockey Molter rode two winners and little apprentice S. Harris triumphed for the first time in his young career when he hustled Koji home in the fourth by a short head. Two favorites and three second choices took races.

THREE CALGARIANS WIN

Three of the purses stayed in Calgary; Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver owners benefited by a prize apiece; with the odd prize going the way of a visitor from Oklahoma.

The "upset" of the afternoon occurred in the sixth embroilment when Eleanor's Choice, (evidently "feeling her oats" in this exhilarating altitude), forgot that there was a form book, and sped away from her opponents to soon be a 'street' in front, and win that way. Eleanor returned $50.90 for a $6 across-the-board investment.

The "regulars" (who think that 2 to 1 is a big price and never look beyond favorites), did not have a pleasant time. A lot of "wise money" was dissipated over the "odds on" Pagan Knight, and on the presumed good-thing, Idle Talk (11½ to 10). Further losers such as Quick Way (8½ to 5), Jorghensen (8¾ to 5), and Mortime (2¼ to 1), quite spoiled the day for the "clever" brigade.

Stone Brook, probably the world's worst actor at the starting gate, delayed the start of the fourth race for seven minutes, giving Molter a terrible time. The three-year-old was just as bad on this circuit as a youngster, and has been a nightmare this year to starters below the border previous to being inflicted upon Jim Donovan.

BASEBALL'S BIG SIX

The Big Six was reduced to normal size yesterday when Wally Moses of the Athleics failed to keep pace with Joe Vosmik in hitting through a doubleheader. Vosmik hit three times in eight attempts, raised his average two points to .343 and took undisputed hold of the third American League berth. Charley Gehringer did the day's heavy hitting for the sextet with three blows in as many times up and four runs. That hoisted his mark to .351, a rise of six points. The leader, Arky Vaughan, lost a point with one blow in three tries while the others suffered slightly larger losses.

Bantam Soccer

The Bantams have just completed their most successful season since the formation of the league.

They not only had more teams entered than ever before, but they turned in a superior brand of soccer to that of former years, and if the boys continue to show the same improvement many of them will be among the first-class players in a few years' time.

The Buchanan Rovers proved to be the class of the league as they completed the season without losing a game. With the possible exception of Bonnie Doon the teams were very evenly matched and provided some keenly contested games during the season. Bonnie Doon were handicapped by starting late in the season, but were improving every time out towards the end of the year. Maple Leafs were also unfortunate in having to default their last five games because of school examinations and players away on holidays, but if they had been able to finish their schedule, they stood a good chance of coming second.

The following is the final standing of the Bantam Soccer teams:

	W	L	D	Goals F	Goals A	Pts
Buchanan Rovers	11	0	1	35	9	23
Alberta Ave	7	2	3	25	14	17
Beverly	5	3	4	11	7	14
South Side	5	6	1	10	15	11
King Edward	3	6	3	20	22	9
Maple Leafs	3	8	1	12	9	7
Bonnie Doon	1	10	1	8	41	3

One Seeded Star Beaten On First Day Net Tourney

Roger Waters Defeated by Shorts Purcell in Hard-fought Match By Scores Of 6-1, 6-4.

Featured by one upset, the elimination from the men's open singles, of Roger Waters Civil Service Club star, at the hands of Andy "Shorts" Purcell, at 6-1, 6-4, the annual Edmonton and District Tennis Championships got away to a flying start at four clubs on Saturday afternoon, and will continue throughout the week.

With the exception of Waters, all the seeded players who went into action, came through as expected.

All draws were run off as scheduled on Saturday and two matches were played on Sunday.

Many excellent encounters are billed for today.

NOT GREAT SURPRISE

While Waters' defeat at the hands of Purcell is regarded as an upset many were not surprised.

The seeding committee of the tennis association had some difficulty in deciding whether to give a seeded berth to Waters or Purcell. Waters got the call and in the subsequent drawing, by a curious turn of fate, they were fated to meet in the first round.

Purcell, a member of the Far West championship hockey team, Ira Stuart's Superiors, reached the last eight in the 1934 tournament, after eliminating no less a star than Walter McIntosh in straight sets in the first round. In the "eights" he was beaten by Kinloch. Thus Purcell had heavy backing to beat Waters.

On Saturday, Purcell carried too much heavy artillery for the blonde Civil Service star. Purcell took the lead and ran out the first set rapidly at 6-1. The second set was more evenly fought, with games going to four-all and then Purcell getting through for the next two. He was hitting hard and driving through Waters defence most of the time.

KINLOCH WINNER

Harry Kinloch, defending title holder, was given the place of honor, in opening the tournament. He played lead-off match with his opponent no less a player than Stan Goddard a former "last eight" man but recently of Cincinnati and Cleveland.

Goddard put up a gallant fight and a splendid exhibition of tennis, exchanging drives with the "Flaxen Flash" and often coming out best. However, in the net result the Kinloch steam-roller went to work with a will and the defending champion passed into the second round with a 6-3, 6-0 win.

Other seeded stars came through nicely. Stan Moher scored a convincing 6-2, 6-1 win over the hard-hitting Dave Gunderson. Walter McIntosh was back in his good form to down S. Fraser with the loss of only one game in each set.

BACK IN FORM

Fraser Goddard, who had slipped a notch along with McIntosh on Friday night, in inter-club play, also was back on his game and scored a convincing win over S. Marshall at 6-1, 6-3. John Oliver scored the one shut-out of the afternoon in defeating Morris Richards 6-0, 6-0. Richards put over many fine shots, with a varied assortment of twists, but was unable to put over the winning punch in the pinches.

Francois Brissette was pressed considerably to win over Dick Milton, summer school ace from Halkirk, at 8-6, 6-0. Harry Gardler was banging them over in fine style to turn back Angus McPhee the McCauley port sider at 6-2, 6-4. Peter Adamson came near causing an upset when he forced Bill Anderson, former junior city champ to 7-5, 6-4.

Peter, but 16 years old, gave the tall former junior champ plenty of worry and especially when he led at 5-4 in the first set with his own service to follow. He got over-anxious here and Anderson's greater experience came to his rescue and pulled him out of a tough spot.

Several other specially fine matches were played.

WOMEN'S UPSET

In the women's division, Clara Thorburn, rapidly-improving Garneau star, defeated Mrs. Mary Keane Lewis at 3-6, 6-4, 6-2 to cause a surprise. Helen Wolfe accounted for Miss M. Thorburn at 6-4, 6-3. Mrs. Taylor "took" Aileen Greenlees at 6-1, 6-1 and Ruth Fry won a highly creditable victory over Hattie Hopkins, former Commercial Grads bsaketball star at 6-4, 7-5.

The men's doubles also produced some interesting matches. The fancied team of Harrison-McIntosh came out on top in their embroglio with the two Jimmies, Hoyle and Stacey at 6-2, 6-1. The winners looked good throughout and have much backing to cop the title. Brissette-McMahon were watched carefully in their match with Richards-McPhee, the former team winning at 6-3, 6-2. McMahon, reappearing in tournament play after a two year absence looked as good as ever.

A glance over today's draw will reveal a grist of attractive matches, with Kinloch, Harrison and others on view.

Below are Saturday's results and today's draws:

STORE GIRLS DEFEAT E.C.D. IN BALL TILT

Army and Navy Nine Wins 11-4 Score at Boyle Street Park

Turning in a remarkable performance behind the four-hit hurling of Irma Blake, Army & Navy nine breezed through to a 11-4 victory over the E.C.D. girls in their encounter of the City Girls' Baseball League at Boyle street Saturday evening.

The winning decision enabled the store girls to gain a second place deadlock with the E.C.D. in the league standings.

While the verdict was quite unexpected the winners were nevertheless worthy of their triumph and they gave their best performance of the year. Every player came through in fine style in their team's cause and unlike previous games only two errors marred their display.

Irma Blake played a big part in the triumph by holding the opposition to four scattered hits. The milk merchants used three pitchers over the route.

Peace River Has Two-Day Sports Meeting Friday

PEACE RIVER, July 8—Peace River's midsummer sports and stampede, postponed from July 1 and 2, were held Friday and Saturday, barely two days' notice being given to the surrounding countryside, through wire, telephone and touring cars with banners, but an unusually large crowd of spectators turned up.

Horse racing and exhibitions of broncho-busting and wild steer riding provided many thrills. In two baseball games, Friday afternoon, Peace River beat High Prairie 13-4 and then went into a double-header to trim Whitelaw 5-4, after that team had secured a default from McLennan.

A large crowd attended the boxing bouts Friday evening. The opening bout, between Pope and Bissett, was called after the referee had warned both contestants for stalling. Jimmie Rimmer and Demko fought a lively draw and were followed by Bourassa and Ferguson, Bourassa getting the nod. In the main attraction between Kid Alcides, of Athabasca, and Fred Osborne, of Fairview, Alcides received the decision through his aggressiveness.

YOUNG MIAMI NATATOR COPS DOUBLE TITLE

Ralph Flanagan Triumphs In Two Events at Swim Meet

DETROIT, July 8—Ralph Flanagan, 17-year-old Miami, Fla., high school boy, won a second crown in the National A.A.U. Swimming Championships here Sunday night, 10:07.6, an unofficial world mark for 10:07.6, an unofficial world mark for the long course.

It was the third defeat of the meet for Jack Medica, Seattle ace, who holds the listed world and United States long-course record for the 880-yard event of 10:15.4.

DEFENDS TITLE.

Jimmy Gilhula of the Detroit Athletic Club, successfully defended his title in the 220-yard free style, although he swam the distance in the comparatively slow time of 2:15:1.

Another defending title-holder, the Lake Shore Athletic Club of Chicago, came through in the 300-meter medley relay defeating a team representing the Olneyville, R.I., Boys' Club.

The winner's time, 3:24.8, unofficially established a new United States record, and officials said it also would be entered as a world mark for the long course.

WIN TEAM RELAY

The team trophy for the meet, which concluded with the medley relay event, went to the Detroit Athletic Club, which had 45 points.

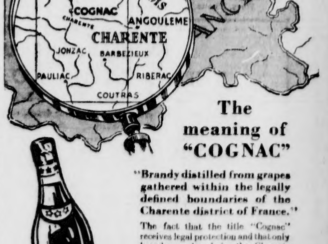

Two new champions were crowned Saturday night on the basis of record-smashing performances.

John Macionis, 19-year-old Philadelphia youth, upset the dope in the 440-yard free style to wrest the title from Medica. Macionis was timed at 4:15.5. The recognized world record for the event was 4:52.0.

Adolph Keifer, 17-year-old Chicagoan, won a decided victory in the 100-meter backstroke. He was clocked in 1:07.8. The old mark was 1:08.2.
